HEAD OF COUNTY'S SCHOOLS SPEAKS ON EDUCATION

Mark Keppel Tells Rotary Club Ignorance Great Curse of Nation

In keeping with the spirit of American Education Week, the principal speaker at yesterday's luncheon meeting of the Rotary club was Mark Keppel, county superintendent of public schools and one of the educational leaders of the state.

In a forceful and pertinent address filled with illustrative humorous anecdotes, Superintendent Keppel pointed out that the needs of the county, the state, the nation and the world are for more education.

"Don't let us be like that old farmer who in his spare time sometimes sat and thought but mostly just sat," he said. "What we want is more thinking and less sitting. We talk about freedom but there is no freedom where the mind is a slave to ignorance."

Education costly.

"It is true that education is costly," he continued, "but that is because we did not start sooner. And the longer we put off the job of completely educating all of our citizens, the more it will cost. The time to get busy is now. Next generation, unless illiteracy is combated to the utmost of our resources, there will be more of it. We have been called a sixth grade nation, meaning that the average of educated intelligence abroad in our land is equal to that found in the sixth grade of the public schools. In Los Angeles county alone there are 9000 illiterates. Is that not appalling?"

"Education is a problem that is with the women every day in the year. They have their children's upbringing most immediately in hand. The men have this problem to face but two times a year—when they pay the taxes! Surely the men can face a problem twice a year that their wives must face daily."

Stating that some had sought to put flood control measures ahead of education in the recent campaign, Superintendent Keppel said:

S. A. TROWBRIDGE LIKES GLENDALE

Couldn't Get Rid of City of Des Moines, So He Comes Out West

Glendale has as a citizen one of California's best boosters. He is S. A. Trowbridge, formerly of Des Moines, Iowa, and his residence is 427 Burchett street, where he and his wife now live. When asked why he left Des Moines, Mr. Trowbridge said:

"Why couldn't I? I never came to Des Moines, anyway. It came to me. I used to have a farm, way out in the country. One day woke up and found the city had come to visit me. I entertained it and it seemed to like my hospitality. It stayed and stayed. I couldn't get rid of it. So, finally, after Mrs. Trowbridge and I had raised three boys and three girls and had them all get married and go away, while the city still stayed on, we decided we'd better go too. So we did."

Three Big Boys

"By the way, you ought to see those boys! Eighteen feet of men in three pieces. Put together they weigh over 600 pounds."

Mr. Trowbridge's enthusiasm for Glendale is second only to that he feels for his family. He sees the city as in its infancy, and, although he is nearly 65, is fully confident he will live to see it number 60,000 people within its confines.

When asked if he thought the California "bubble," as some pessimists call it, would ever burst, he said with a twinkle in his eyes: "Why, land sakes, it's already burst and run all over the country!"

Refuse City Funds For Crossing Signals

The City Council last night went on record opposed to an appropriation of city funds to install a wig-wag signal at the Gardena crossing of the Pacific Electric.

"There is just as much sense in buying cow catchers to prevent people from getting hit as there is in buying wig-wags to prevent them from getting hit when they go across the tracks," remarked Councilman Dwight W. Stephenson. "I wouldn't give 1 cent for a wig-wag!"

Abandonment of the Gardena crossing was discussed when the fact was brought out that the railroad commission might require that it be protected by the city of Glendale.

WHY QUENCH COMMUNITY SPIRIT? WHY KILL PRIDE?

Why Tear Down What We Have Taken Years to Build Into Importance?

IF ANNEXATION to Los Angeles should assure us the lowest possible taxes, car fares, phone rates; the immediate solution of our sewer problem; and the satisfactory adjustment of all civic questions, there is still a reason why we should hesitate to join the larger city.

Why should we surrender our civic identity, why quench that community spirit that has meant so much in making Glendale what it is today? Those who have had a part in Glendale's development from a mere village to a city of its present proportions and prestige have a pride in the community that is as clearly defined as our love for our country.

Why should we not be proud of the city we have built up little by little until its name has become a synonym for all that is desirable in a community of homes? Why should we abandon our civic patriotism; be disloyal to our community any more than to our country?

Ten years ago Glendale was a village practically unknown. People who had lived in Los Angeles for years did not know there was such a place as Glendale, California. Glendale's growth was rapid, but the city did not spring to its present fame over night.

What of the early settlers, the men who founded Glendale? They didn't settle in Los Angeles. They came far to the north. (It was far in those days because there were no facilities for getting back and forth except riding through the sage brush on horseback and fording the river.) They selected this location because of its healthful altitude, the beauty of its location and the bountiful supply of water in the mountains near by.

They settled here because it looked to them like a good place to found their homes. They laid out a few blocks and called it a town. They gave it a name. Those pioneers gave Glendale (small and unimportant as far as the outside world was concerned) an individuality. It was then and has been ever since a place of homes. Those men of early Glendale built a splendid foundation for a city.

In later years citizens working in the Chamber of Commerce and in other organizations, and as individuals, have spent their strength and their money to put Glendale on the map, literally and figuratively; they have won just recognition for their city; they have put her in the place her wealth, her population and her slightly situation have entitled her to occupy among the cities of the United States.

Now, why, with one stroke, undo all the work of years, destroy our community spirit, our civic identity?

The Glendale Presbyterian church might disband and allow its members to scatter among the Presbyterian churches of Los Angeles. They could be cared for in that way; they could worship just as devoutly in another church. This would save the expense of the costly building they are erecting in Glendale, do away with pastors' salaries and other expenses galore. This might apply to any church.

But what Glendale church would consider for a moment giving up its identity as a church family, a little community in itself? What pastor and what church members who have dreamed and toiled to build up a strong organization and to acquire valuable property with which to carry on would think for a minute of undoing all this work?

Then why should we as a city take such a step?

Would the Tuesday Afternoon Club of Glendale think of surrendering its charter to the Elks of Los Angeles? Would this big organization that has grown from such a humble beginning through the untiring loyalty of the women of Glendale, and has come to be such a source of pride to the entire city, think of giving up its identity and its ideals? The members could no doubt gain entrance to Los Angeles women's clubs and probably enjoy the same benefits and privileges as here. The members would be saved the cost of building and maintaining their club house as well as the many other expenses of the club.

Can't you see some of the veterans in woman's club work in Glendale who have given years to make the Tuesday Afternoon Club what it is, going about with petitions asking that the club be allowed to disband and that the charter be turned over to some Los Angeles club? Those women know at what a cost their organization was brought to its present status. They will never be guilty of destroying the work of years in this way.

The Tuesday Afternoon Club of Glendale would not dream of yielding up its selfhood, its personality. Is not the city of Glendale itself as important and as much entitled to its individuality as any of its clubs or organizations?

Glendale Lodge of Elks, 1289, might go out of existence. The members could be taken into Los Angeles, 99, and would probably be gladly received there. In this way they could save the upkeep of the club house in Glendale and this splendid building could be used for other purposes. Why should this club wish to exist when the members could be taken care of elsewhere at less expense? Nevertheless, you will not find any of the Glendale Elks, who dreamed for years of a home of their own and then worked to make their dream come true, advocating that 1289 disband, go out of business and turn all records and resources over to 99. Wouldn't it be foolish for them to do so?

Isn't Glendale as important, hasn't she as much right to govern herself as her Elks or any other club?

When we ask for annexation to Los Angeles is not that an admission that we cannot govern ourselves? Should we not, as voters, be ashamed to make such an admission? Are there not men and women in Glendale as able and loyal as in Los Angeles or in any other city in the world? If our city is not governed right it is your fault and mine, and it isn't likely that we can adjust things to our satisfaction by tearing down what we have taken years to build.

Our community spirit, our pride in Glendale has been an inspiration in years past; something to work for. Let us keep our civic identity and with it our pride in and loyalty to our own.

SONGS IN COSTUME SEVEN PERSONS ON LONG AUTO TOUR TO VISIT HERE

Miss Grace Wood Jess Wins Praise for Pleasurable Program Last Night

By KATHERINE V. SINKS
Member Evening News Staff.

Miniature song dramas beautifully and artistically presented touching the heart with the quaint fast music or lonesome tunes of ante-bellum days in the south; with the majestic beauty of the French song story of the Nativity and the Holy Mother and Child; with the heart throbs of Russia felt in her music; or with the clever Melodious Populaires des Provinces de France brought Miss Grace Wood Jess, mezzo soprano, before Glendale Music club members and guests last night in the Glendale Union High school auditorium.

For Miss Jess the program was but an added success and for her hearers it was two hours of unique and pleasurable entertainment.

In Period Costume

Miss Jess presents her various song groups in period costume and the perfection of her wardrobe harmonizes wonderfully with her personal beauty and charm, her soft rich voice, her dramatic cleverness and her delightful stage presence.

Her program might well be termed a character kaleidoscope for from her first greeting to her final bow she brings to her audience convincing pictures of all the folk she sings about.

To give her hearers a keener appreciation of her songs Miss Jess has a happy way of prefacing each song with the quaint

CLUB PRESIDENT TELLS OF PLANS

Outlines Oakmont Project at Luncheon of Glendale Advancement Body

The Glendale Advancement association yesterday extended its moral support to the Oakmont Country club.

The regular weekly luncheon of this association was held as usual in the Broadway Inn. After considerable discussion at the close of the meeting, it was decided that the next meeting should be at the dinner hour next Thursday.

H. M. Parker, president of the Oakmont Country club, spoke briefly in regard to the project. He expressed a hope that most of the first 300 memberships, which are considerably cheaper than the remaining 450, would be taken by Glendale residents in order that they might get as much benefit as possible from the club.

S. B. Morse, who is interested in the new country club also, said that he had returned to Glendale to make his home because he desired to have the advantage for recreation offered by a golf course.

Needs Recreation

"A retired man has got to have some recreation," he remarked. "Every business man should have a playground. Every doctor, dentist and professional man will probably want a membership in this club."

Upon motion of Charles S. Stuart of 638 East Broadway, the association wished the new country club the best of success.

Equipment is now being bought by the Glendale & Montrose railway for electrification of the Union Pacific line on South Glendale avenue, according to the report of P. J. Hayselden of 612 East Broadway, chairman of the railroad committee. He stated that the Glendale & Montrose railway was now awaiting the return of the signed contract from the Union Pacific before starting actual construction work. He said that he had been informed that this contract had been signed about ten days ago and was now en route to Los Angeles. As soon as it arrives, application will be made by the Glendale & Montrose railway for the necessary permit from the State Railway commission.

Praises Councilman

Councilman Sam Davis, who was present at the luncheon, was commended by Mr. Hayselden for his activity in behalf of the electric line.

"We certainly are glad to tell Mr. Davis that we thank him," remarked C. W. Ingledue, president of the organization. He expressed his opinion that a good deal of the money pledged toward the $25,000 bonus to be paid upon the inauguration of electric service would be brought in as soon as the subscribers found that it was wanted.

The new hotel will be put up by either one firm or another, according to the substance of a report by C. W. Ingledue. He urged patience and optimism.

Miss Anna M. Shaley Will Welcome Party 'Seeing America First'

Mrs. Anna M. Shaley of 328 East Dryden street, is looking forward to the arrival during the coming week of her two sisters, Mrs. G. F. Newhall and Mrs. B. T. Weise and their families, whose arrival in Glendale will mark the close of an extensive auto journey across the continent.

To see America first and know the American people as they really are from the Atlantic coast to the Pacific coast was the idea of the two families when they sold their homes in Chicago, Ill., and started on a year's vacation.

In the party of sightseers are six women and girls and one man. They are Mrs. G. F. Newhall and two daughters, Misses Myrtle and Eleanor Newhall, Mrs. B. T. Weise and two daughters, Misses Erna and Ruth Weise, and Dr. G. F. Newhall.

Leave Last July

The Newhall-Weise party left Chicago on July 29 and since that time have been in many states. They spent some time in Yellowstone, then went into Montana, through Idaho and Oregon to Portland, then to Seattle and back by Portland on to Oakland, where they spent a week or two before going to the Shaley ranch at Santa Marguerita, just north of San Luis Obispo. From the ranch they will come to Glendale for the winter.

They travel in two cars, one of them driven by Miss Ruth Weise, who is said to be a "regular mechanic."

Members of the party write that they are quite enthusiastic over the highway system and completed California on the paved roads.

Give Up Studies

Misses Myrtle and Eleanor Newhall and Ruth Weise are students at Northwestern university, Chicago, and they gave up one year of study to take the trip. They plan to resume their work upon arriving home. After the winter in Southern California the Newhall-Weise party plan to return to Chicago by the southern route.

New Theatre Buys Greater Frontage

Fred A. Miller, B. E. Loper and associates, who are to build and operate the new Gateway Theatre in South Glendale, have today purchased ten feet additional frontage from the well-known picture star, Ruth Roland, who owns the property adjoining the site of the proposed playhouse. This gives the Gateway a frontage of seventy feet on the boulevard, which is ample ground to provide for a capacity of a thousand seats.

Work on the new theatre will be started within a few days, and it is expected that the theatre will be ready for occupancy in about three or four months. The plans are about completed and it is to be modern in every respect, including a magnificent pipe organ which has already been purchased at a cost of $20,000.

Two-Year-Old Boy Breaks Right Leg

A Christmas shopping trip yesterday afternoon resulted rather tragically for Henry Breckinridge Chenoweth, 2 year old son of captain and Mrs. C. E. Chenoweth of 328 West Broadway, who accompanied his parents into the Coker & Taylor plumbing shop at 209 South Brand boulevard and accidentally pulled a big laundry tub over onto himself, with the result that his right leg was broken.

The break is just above the ankle and according to the attending physician, Dr. H. R. Boyer, will keep the little chap pretty quiet for perhaps four weeks. The boy was reported as resting easily today.

Uncle John Says--

By golly, if some of these women that think they have to go to Los Angeles every time they need a paper of pins and then shop up and down Broadway all day before they buy 'em, only realized how much easier it would be to do their trading in Glendale they'd never go to Los Angeles again. Me and Mary has made a study of prices and we know we can get almost anything just as cheap in Glendale. Where there's a little difference in price we'd just as leave pay it and save car fare and the discomfort of goin' to the city.

MAJOR GENERAL WOOD TO STAY IN PHILIPPINES
WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Major General Leonard Wood has tendered his resignation as provost of the University of Pennsylvania, and will remain in Manila permanently as governor-general of the Philippines, the war department stated.

$15,000,000 FIRE LOSS IN ASTORIA, OREGON, TODAY
ASTORIA, Ore., Dec. 8.—A conflagration which swept the entire business area of Astoria today and which at noon was menacing the city hall and Catholic hospital, will result in property loss aggregating $15,000,000, according to estimates of city authorities. Twenty-seven city blocks were wiped out by the tongues of fire which jumped with a shifting wind and ate through the frame business structures.

NOW SEARCHING FOR CLARA PHILLIPS IN ARIZONA
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—Search for Clara Phillips, escaped "hammer murderer," centered today along the Arizona line following receipt of advice by the sheriff's office that a mysterious airplane landed near Phoenix last night and delivered a woman passenger said to have resembled Mrs. Phillips. A telegram to the sheriff's office said C. D. Harrison witnessed the landing of the plane, and while he could not positively identify the woman, said she looked like the fugitive slayer. The couple, Harrison said, asked where they could get a street car into the city.

ARRESTS FOLLOW EXECUTION OF IRISH LEADERS
DUBLIN, Dec. 8.—Within less than twenty-four hours after republican assassins had shot down Deputy Speaker Patrick O'Malley, of the Dail Eireann, and Deputy John (Sean) Hales, four of the most prominent republican irregular leaders in custody, headed by Roderick (Rory) O'Connor, were executed by a free state firing squad today. Execution of O'Connor and his three republican companions was a direct reprisal for the assassination of Deputy Hales, it was revealed by an official statement issued by the free state military authorities during the afternoon. At the same time the free state government served warning of similar reprisals if there are any more executions of free state officials. As the soldiers were putting a handkerchief over O'Connor's eyes he waved them aside. "I want no bandages," O'Connor said. All went to their deaths bravely. Three Catholic priests were present at the execution, praying beside the doomed men until the blast of rifle fire drowned their voices. The executions had ghastly elements that ordinarily would have broken the strongest nerve. The graves already had been dug in the jail yard for the immediate internment of the bodies as soon as the physicians officially pronounced life extinct. The four condemned men were detained briefly and as they were led to the scene of death they had to pass the freshly dug graves. The firing squad was already on the scene when the quartet were led forth. The soldiers waited, rifles in hand, while handkerchiefs were bound over the men's eyes. While news of the executions created a sensation, the city remained calm.

ELABORATE PLANS OUTLINED FOR CHRISTMAS CELEBRATION
Community Tree, Music, Program, Will Be Features In Charge of Committees

Christmas in Glendale is to be a gala event, according to plans discussed for the community tree and celebration last night at the meeting called at the Chamber of Commerce by Lyman P. Clark, president of the Kiwanis club, and chairman local community service organization. Fifty representatives from local civic and social organizations responded to the call and participated planning for Glendale's Christmas celebration.

Mr. Clark presided over the meeting, during which opinions and suggestions were voiced by all present.

The result of the meeting was the unanimous decision that the community Christmas tree should be located on the Glendale Union high school grounds, if possible.

Plan Organization

Furthermore it was decided that a general chairman should be appointed for the celebration and that a series of assisting chairmen and committees be appointed. These committees will have charge of location and program, music, finances, publicity, welfare, supplies, decorations and clean-up.

In discussing their welfare plans the community service organization went on record as heartily endorsing and cooperating with the present Glendale Welfare Council and Bureau.

Herman Nelson was appointed chairman, and Harry James and Mrs. E. S. McKee, members of a committee to confer with the social recreation committee, T. D. Watson, R. D. White and V. M. Hollister, in the appointment of the above committees.

Discuss Financing

Methods of financing the Christmas celebration were discussed. The headquarters for the various committees and assistants is at the community service headquarters at 108 South Brand boulevard.

Mrs. W. Q. Widdows, chairman of the music committee, gave a report of the plans for the carols. She reported that Alexander Stuart, Pacific coast community service musical instructor, is in Glendale coaching the Christmas music. Also that those desiring carol song books can secure them without charge upon application at the Chamber of Commerce or the Glendale Music company.

Mrs. Widdows stated that Harry Girard is coaching a group for a carol tableau and that other tableaux are being planned.

It is the plan to give all children candy at the Christmas tree.

With regard to the Welfare work it was announced that the Welfare Council will have headquarters at the corner of Los Feliz road and Brand boulevard over the fire station, and also at the community service headquarters at 108 South Brand boulevard.

At the close of the meeting it was decided to appoint a get acquainted committee to assist in making Glendale a City of Neighbors as well as a City of Homes.

Among those attending the meeting were: Harold F. Benner, W. A. Reynolds, Alice Frank James, Francis S. Elbe, Mrs. Mary Baxter, Mrs. Mae Rosenberg, Mrs. E. S. McKee, Mrs. A. W. Tower, Mrs. Frank C. Ayars, Mrs. L. W. Sinclair, Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, William Hunter, S. F. Bell, W. F. Tower, T. D. Watson, Louis Tinning, Bert P. Woodward, H. W. Tower, A. W. Tower, L. T. Rowley, C. H. PRESIDENT STATES VIEWS ON GREAT HOME ISSUES

Harding, In Message to Congress, Deals With Important Topics

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 8. In a vigorous message, written straight from the shoulder on a number of great domestic issues, President Harding went before a joint session of congress this afternoon with the most far reaching program the administration has yet offered for dealing with the railroad situation, agricultural relief and prohibition enforcement.

The greater part of the President's long message dealt with this trio of national troubles, and chief among his recommendations were the following:

He suggested the advisability of abolishing the railway labor board as at present constituted, and the transfer of its functions to the interstate commerce commission through the addition of four railroad workers, who would constitute "a labor division."

He dismissed the idea of government operation as already having failed, and as impractical.

Prohibiting Strikes.

He suggested and endorsed the theory that railroad strikes should be prohibited by law.

He endorsed the living wage for railway workers.

Prohibition enforcement.

He characterized the present enforcement as a "national scandal," and the "most demoralizing factor of our national life."

He announced his intention of summoning to Washington at an early date a conference of the governors of all the states for a discussion of the whole enforcement problem in the hope that out of a closer co-operation between state and federal officers must come stricter observance of the law.

He warned those who evade the prohibition law they are undermining the moral fiber of the republic.

He expressed the belief that the eighteenth amendment is in the constitution to stay.

Prohibition Measure.

He endorsed the statutory enforcement law (the Volstead law) but recognized the possibility of (Continued on Page 13)

WOMAN AGE 75 KILLED BY CAR

Mrs. Ruth Hollingsworth, Returning From Theatre, In Fatal Crash

Mrs. Ruth Grace Katherine Hollingsworth, 75, of 430 East Dryden street, was struck and fatally injured by a Pacific Electric interurban car at the junction of North Brand boulevard and Wilson avenue shortly after 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

She died immediately after being removed to the Glendale Sanitarium, and Hollingsworth, by passing motorists. Death resulted from a fracture of the skull.

The body is now at the Kiefer & Eyerick undertaking parlors on East Broadway. An inquest is expected to be held tomorrow.

The Pacific Electric car was No. 452. It was in charge of Conductor Hammonette and Motorman J. S. Carpenter. According to the report of the accident, their train was leaving Wilson avenue outbound on Brand when Mrs. Hollingsworth jumped directly in front of it. They reported that the train was running between five and eight miles at the time.

Here for Ten Years

Mrs. Hollingsworth, who had been a resident of Glendale for the past ten years, is a native of Austin, Texas. She resided at her Dryden street address with her two daughters, Joan and Joycie, and with her son, J. P. Hollingsworth. The latter is associated with the Glendale Mill company. Also left to mourn her death is her daughter, Mrs. Radcliffe Hollingsworth of 414 1/2 East Dryden street, and her brothers in Texas.

Mrs. Radcliffe Hollingsworth stated this morning that her mother was unusually active for a woman of her age. Every day, rain or shine, she said, her mother would go to a movie show. She left home at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, as was her custom, she asserted.

As the accident happened after 4:30 o'clock Mrs. Hollingsworth is of the opinion that her mother was on her way to entertain for home when the accident occurred. She always boarded a car at Brand and Wilson and alighted at Dryden avenue, Mrs. Hollingsworth stated.

She also said that the remains of her mother will undoubtedly be cremated, as she had always expressed that wish. A funeral announcement will be made later.

Turk Leader Accepts Near East Proposals

LAUSANNE, Dec. 8. — Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation in the Near East peace conference, today accepted, with modifications, the Turkish straits proposals made by the allies and the United States.

Addressing the Turkish straits commission Ismet said that the Turks "accepted in general" the allied proposals as to the future status of the straits, but took exceptions to the allied plan to include Constantinople within the demilitarized zone.

The Turks maintained they should have the right to fortify Constantinople, intimating that the seat of government would be removed there from Angora.

As soon as the Turkish straits commission met at 11 o'clock, Ismet said the Turks were ready to present their viewpoint. He then outlined the Turkish policy at the same time submitting a number of questions regarding the allied program submitted on Wednesday by Lord Curzon.

The meeting was friendly except for a bitter tirade delivered by Georges Tchitcherine, head of the Russian delegation.

A recess was taken until 4:30 o'clock when Lord Curzon promised to reply to the Turkish statement, answering the questions put by the Turkish envoys.

The action of the Turks today indicated the Turco-Russian bloc is on the point of a complete break-up.

HEAD OF SCHOOLS SPEAKER AT CLUB

More Education Big Need of Nation for Future, Declares Official

control be without educational citizens to take advantage of it?"

Struggle Grows Harder. Continuing along this same line, he stated that the time will come, and "sooner than any of us realize," when the "easy land" will all be snatched up and the struggle for a livelihood will be a far more difficult one than it now is, with the victory going to the educated man, trained to meet competition.

In pointing out the menace of crowding in the lower grades, Superintendent Keppel appealed straight to the "pocketbook reason" of the taxpayer, stating that facts show expenses of education increase proportionally as the child advances to the higher grades, while the efficacy of education decreases. The basic knowledge the child will carry through life is acquired in the lower grades, yet it is here that the greatest crowding occurs, where, in his own words, "Children are not taught but herded."

Need More Schools. In order to overcome this situation, Superintendent Keppel feels that more and again more schools are needed, and that the taxpayer must realize this. Even Glendale's new high school, for which bonds have been voted, will be inadequate when completed, magnificent as it is, and the problem will still be with us.

To paint the other side of the picture a number of very interesting statistics were presented by the superintendent, showing that, compared with the nation, California is more than doing its part in the great educational program, and that, compared with San Francisco and county, Los Angeles and county is considerably in the lead. The statistics show that throughout the United States 7 per cent of students enter high school whereas in California this figure is 25 per cent; and that the 1922 state budget, based entirely upon daily attendance, allotted Los Angeles and county $2,820,000 to $988,000 allotted San Francisco and county.

Also that the number of public school teachers in Los Angeles county has increased from 1130 in 1902 to 7815 in 1922.

Entertainment Pleases. The remarks of Superintendent Keppel were preceded by a very enjoyable entertainment program featuring eighth grade students presented by Richardson D. White, Glendale's superintendent of schools. Preston Hanning sang "Swanee River Moon" and "Back to Old Kentucky," accompanied by Mrs. Hagood. William Chamberlain delivered a four-minute address on "Industrial Education." And Mr. White's little daughter, Helen, whistled charmingly, accompanied by Miss Gladys Sharp.

Following this program Alexander Stewart, Community Service musical director for the Pacific coast, gave a short talk on "The Value of Music in the Community," pointing out that it creates good feeling and neighborliness, prime moving forces in better community life.

A number of visiting Rotarians were present. Jerome B. Pendleton of San Diego, Alexander Stewart of Oakland, John C. Stannard of Alameda, Carlos Newberry of Bakersfield, N. J. Lingreen of Aberdeen, S. Dak., Benjamin E. Barnard of Mitchell, S. Dakota, and J. R. Knapp and Ray Edward of Los Angeles.

Irregulars Seeking Vengeance, Kill One

DUBLIN, Dec. 8.—The reprisal executions of "Rory" O'Connor, Laim Mellows, Joseph McKelvey and Richard Barrett led to counter violence by the republicans this afternoon.

Armed republican irregulars broke into Mercers hospital, shooting to death a bedridden Free State soldier as he lay helpless.

The assailants escaped after menacing the nurses with revolvers and throwing the whole hospital into panic.

Guards around all the Irish government buildings have been increased and all officials are accompanied by bodyguards when they go into the street.

Free State officials are most active rounding up republican suspects. Many additional arrests have been made.

It was reported that a spy had been captured in the ranks of the Free State army at Cork. He is suspected of having given the irregulars information which led to the fatal ambush in Cork county when Michael Collins was shot to death.

Deputy Patrick O'Malley of the Dail Eireann, who was wounded yesterday when Deputy Hales was assassinated was still in a serious condition today.

Funeral of Frank Bacon Held Today

SAN JOSE, Cal., Dec. 8.—Frank Bacon's home town paid simple but eloquent tribute to its most illustrious son, all California joining in the homage. Hundreds came from afar to look for the last time upon the calm face of "Lightnin' Bill Jones" who tonight will be forever sleeping beneath the great oaks at Alta Mesa cemetery, near Los Altos. Burial services were private with the Mountain View Masonic order officiating.

Sincerity is inclined to obedience.

Men Stenographers Are Declared Best

PARIS.—Men make better shorthand writers and typists than women. Prof. J. M. Lahy says.

"My experiments prove that men listen, understand and react more than women," despite the higher degree of female sensitivity. Women are less accurate and less dependable.

"Feminists point out department stores employ thousands of women, therefore, woman must be a success in business. But a store manager said:

"We employ women only because we can hire them at less money than men, and because men will buy more from a woman than they will from a man."

First Sermon Heard by Means of Radio

BOSTON.—Confined to her home by illness for more than a score of years, Mrs. T. Haskins, of No. 15 Payson avenue, Dorchester, heard her first sermon for nearly twenty years by means of the radio.

Friends of the invalid learned that her chief regret was that she could not go to church, so they installed a radio apparatus in her room.

Mrs. Haskins declared that it was just like a voice from another world.

English is the most widely used language commercially.

OVERWORK? HUH! NO SUCH THING!

'Morbid Egoism' and 'Craving' for Sympathy Cause of Condition, Claim

GLOSSOP, Derbyshire, England.—"No person has ever suffered from overwork." With that sentence Professor William Palmer Wynne, the celebrated nerve specialist, astounded a select gathering of neurothesics and a fashionably jaded crowd at a public health meeting.

"The condition which is generally attributed to overwork," went on the professor, "was always due to a morbid egoism, bad habits and the weakling's craving for sympathy. Undue excitement about trifling arrangements of functions leads to that horribly degraded mental state described as 'neurasthenia,' 'nerves' or 'nervous breakdowns.'"

Much Better Name

"Our great-grandmothers called it 'vapors'—a much better name. But in their day that condition was generally confined to the hysterical young woman. But she was not encouraged. Besides, it was not fashionable in those days. Nowadays it is quite fashionable for grown men as well as women to have attacks of 'nervous breakdowns,' and they are treated with sympathy, bottles of medicine and a 'change of air,' instead of bread and water and solitary confinement. The 'illness' was generally attributed to overwork, whereas in the whole of my wide medical experience I have never seen a person suffering from the effects of overwork.

"In the whole of Great Britain there is not a single overworked man. In fact, thousands—nay, millions—have not enough work to do. The community is very like the individual in this matter. Like the individual, therefore, the community should seek to remedy the defects by attacking the root of the evil. In the community the tendency for normal consciousness of disease leads to fussiness, multiplication and overlapping of effort and a frightful waste of public money in treating mere symptoms with what is no better than an opiate for the individual.

Heavy National Charge

"We cannot afford a national neurasthenia. We spend so much money on the relief of the suffering individual that we have not enough left to attack at all properly the root of the evil. I do not begrudge the poor consumptive his relief and his comfort. We spend 3,000,000 pounds a year on treating consumptives, which is so heavy a national charge that there is no margin left for tackling the problem of conditions which manufacture tuberculosis.

"My ideal state would be one which provided a healthy environment and trained its members to take advantage of it. Having been given the opportunity to do so the individual who failed to keep a clean mind, a clean body and a clean home should be cleaned out by the common hangman."

The air mail service has just completed 10 consecutive weeks of performance with no break in the regular schedule and no trips defaulted. During that period the mail airplanes flew an aggregate of 321,600 miles, carrying 13,200,000 letters at a rate of more than 100 miles an hour. When the airway between Chicago and Cheyenne, Wyoming, is lighted, mail will leave New York at 1 p. m. and will arrive in San Francisco by 3 p. m. the next day.

MYSTERY MAN IS ALARMING EUROPE

Zaharoff, Wealthy Russian, Rules Nations With Uncanny Powers

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service.
LONDON.—The Mystery Man of Europe—Sir Basil Zaharoff!

Practically unknown in America, Sir Basil Zaharoff is credited with being one of the few great powers in Europe.

Lord Beaverbrook has recently written an article indirectly tracing many of Britain's misfortunes in the Near East to Sir Basil.

The London press which opposes Lloyd George has attacked Sir Basil during the recent Near East crisis and has inferred most strongly that it was due to his influence that Lloyd George backed the unsuccessful and disastrous ventures of the Greeks in Asia Minor.

Sir Basil Zaharoff is credited with having amassed a fortune of some $100,000,000. He was born in Russia, of a Greek father and a French mother. He went to Paris to make his fortune, and he made it. He was made a Knight Grand Cross of the Bath by Lloyd George—an unexampled distinction for one not a subject of Great Britain.

Called "Monsieur Z" Sir Basil during the World War was referred to as "Monsieur Z." It was known that "Monsieur Z" was a man of great power, but few knew his identity. His fortunes are said to have rolled up immensely during the war.

Sir Basil is credited with being, or having been, the largest shareholder in Vickers-Maxims, the greatest of the European munitions makers. He is at the head of a French group which is associated with the Anglo-Persian Oil company. His holdings in banks and business enterprises spread all over Europe. He is credited with controlling newspapers and even dictating their policies. It is even charged that he is a stockholder in one of the leading pro-George newspapers in Fleet street.

Sir Basil is said to have supported the Greek treasury during the Balkan wars to the extent of $200,000 a month. He has helped to finance the Venizelist cause and is said to have spent nearly $20,000,000 in financing the Greek invasion of Asia Minor.

Gives Freely

Philanthropy flows from the Zaharoff purse. Numerous French and English universities have chairs endowed by this little-known figure. He passes from capital to capital, giving generous sums to the poor, and it is charged that he also provides the sinews of war for kings.

A bachelor, Sir Basil lives with a spinster sister. He has luxurious homes in London and Paris and in other capitals. He is a man of great modesty, and his hobby is said to be cooking, and he spends long hours in his wonderful kitchen cooking rare dishes.

When the late Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson denounced Lloyd George's pro-Greek policy, he said, "Why did Lloyd George back them? Was it to please Zaharoff?"

No one knows what power this little-known man has, but there are many who believe that Zaharoff is the most powerful figure in all Europe.

Lenina is reported to have said, "Our communists are often mighty fine theorists, but they are no good as far as practical labor is concerned. Our worst enemy nowadays is the communist orator, who is put in high positions. We must do away with agitators and propagandists, who know how to break down, but who are unable to put something else in the place. These people are a hindrance to the proletariat."

WE LOVE TO BE REMEMBERED

How it does flatter people to be remembered! I had occasion to observe the pleasant effect of this experience in myself recently. I checked a suitcase at a checking station and lost the check. By identifying the suitcase I got it back. The next time I went to the station I wanted to check a fur. As she handed me out the check the girl in charge said: "Now don't lose the check to that fur. You wouldn't want anything to happen to that."

Of course my vanity was tickled in two places by her evident admiration of the fur and by her remembrance of me.

Like a Cat

I knew it was a silly vanity and yet I had that pleasant feeling in my mind we have when our ego has been stroked the right way. It always strokes anyone the right way to be remembered. Anyone who wants social success should cultivate above almost any other this habit of being able to place people and call them by name. For, if a person forgets you and has to be reminded who you are each time he meets you it will take a great many other good qualities and gifts to outweigh that offense.

Of course half a memory is better than none. I suppose it is less annoying to have a person say "I remember your face but I can't quite remember your name" than to be completely forgotten. But not very much less. It is the person who can say, "Oh, yes, Mr. Roth of Seattle, I remember you perfectly," and then go on to prove that claim by some reference to a previous meeting and to some subject in which the mythical Mr. Roth was interested at that time, who has the key to unlock human hearts.

Yet We Didn't Choose Them

In spite of the fact that there are a few things about us for which we deserve less praise or blame, most people seem to take a peculiar pride in their names. They are almost offended if a newspaper spells them wrong or gets in a wrong initial as if it had said something slanderous about themselves. They like to have people use their names in conversation. "But, Mrs. B., do you really think—and so on," has a more arresting, more personal note to it than the same sentence without the name.

If I owned a shop, or a restaurant, or anything of that sort, I should impress it upon all of my clerks to try to remember the names of as many customers as possible and to call them by name when they come in. Nothing delights a customer more than this attention.

Just Before Sleeping
A man I knew who particularly needed to be able to remember people he had met, used to make it a habit to recall, just before he went to sleep anyone whom he had met during the day, repeat the name, call to mind anything connected with the person, and visualize the face. He said that helped him a great deal.

I, I, MYSELF: I THE HISTORY OF ME BY ME

Chapter XXXVI Testimonies

My Doctor, who is writing my memoirs for me, brought the following letter to me recently and I am going to give it to you because it will help encourage you to raise your babies as I am being raised and as this Mama's babies were raised:

"Dear Doctor:
"I cannot refrain from expressing my appreciation of your most splendid articles on our baby. The reason I say our baby is because I have a boy just like your Sockums, except my baby is three months old instead of two, and he behaves just as your Sockums does. I nurse him on a three hour schedule, and up until he was two months old he slept all the time, between feedings, and now he sleeps practically all the time, and is handled a very little, just what I think he needs for exercise."

"He takes his last feeding for the day at 7:30 p. m. and sleeps until 5:30 or 6 a. m. If he should wake at 2 a. m., which he rarely does, he is given a drink of water, and goes right off to sleep again. He has already been trained in the use of a small chamber for his regular bowel movement each day."

"I know that there are lots of mothers who are training their babies all right, but there are so many more that do not use any system at all, and the poor babies as well as the mothers have to suffer for it. And I know how some mothers will be inclined to say: 'Oh, yes, that is very well for a doctor to write, but when it comes to putting it into practice it is quite another matter.'"

"So I am here to say to such mothers that I have raised five in just the manner your articles describe. If they will just use a little firmness on the start, they will be more than repaid in the results of a good sweet baby, without nerves, and there will be lots more rest and pleasure for the mother."

"I have three children under three years old. Now imagine my predicament if I had to pin diapers on all three of those babies, and rock them all to sleep at night. While as it is, only one of them wears diapers, and has above stated he does not soil his. And when it comes time for them to take their naps, or go to bed at night, I have only to get them ready and tuck them in their cribs and take away the light."

"In the summer time my children are all in bed by 8 o'clock, and in the winter by 7 o'clock, then I have several hours that I can call all my own to go out and leave the children with any member of the family, knowing that they will be all right until morning, or I can read, work or rest as it suits me—and no one but a mother with children knows how sweet that rest hour is."

"People remark that my children are very intelligent and attractive. Do I think it is due to any extra amount of inherited intelligence? No, but I do attribute a great deal to the home training they have received from babyhood, especially in the amount of systematized rest."

"Very sincerely,
"Mrs. J. T. A. L."

Isn't this a nice letter? We like to get 'em, my Doctor and I. You send us one. An revoir.

BEAUTY CHATS

CARE OF THE ELBOWS

If you have grimy elbows you have a problem that will stay with you winter and summer. One of the advantages of being fat,

Do Your Elbows Grime?

(the only advantage in my opinion is that the elbows aren't the grimy sort but nice and cushiony and soft just like the rest of the arms. Sometimes the fat woman's elbows are even dimpled.)

A great writer on feminist subjects says that elbows and toes are never beautiful. I don't agree with him at all. Toes would be beautiful if they were not cramped in modern pointed shoes, while, as for elbows, they are only ugly when grimy and bony, and they needn't be either. The treatment is the very simplest sort. First, scrub the elbows with very hot water and a good quality, mild soap. Use a fairly stiff scrubbing brush. Then rub the elbows with a little cold cream or olive oil, working the oil thoroughly into the skin. I advise this to be done at night because if you go about now wearing a dark dress you will rub an extraordinary amount of dye into the oil saturated skin.

The elbows will take up a remarkable amount of oil. This treatment can be given every single day until your arms are as perfect as you could wish. Gradually, as the oil or cream softens and feeds the skin, the elbows will stay clean with the ordinary washing every day. If olive oil is used the thinnest elbows will begin to look plump and rounded. This is the most satisfactory sort of treatment to give for the results can be seen instantly. You need not wait months, you will see a decided improvement after the first scrubbing.

Vanishing cream is splendid for the elbows, particularly if used after they have been scrubbed and before they are powdered.

Mary Ellen—Low shoes will be used all winter with spats or woolen stockings during the coldest weather.

Catherine—Drinking plenty of water is only one of the things you should do to keep your skin clear, you should have a perfect digestion also and take a daily bath unless your health does not admit of this.

Jennie—The first wisdom tooth usually comes between the ages of 18 and 20, but there are plenty of exceptions to this.

G. T. R.—At 28 years of age, 5 ft., 6 in., you should weigh 130 pounds.

Olive oil and grape juice should be taken with the meals as it mixes in with the food. If it is taken between meals it might interfere with the appetite for the coming meal.

Tomorrow—Long Black Lashes
All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in the next issue. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. If a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Western Girl Tells of Smyrna Tragedy

LOS ANGELES—Thrilling stories of experiences during a year's stay in famine-ridden Smyrna that read like pages from the history of the darkest ages were told by Miss Helen Craig, pretty Whittier girl and relief worker, following her return here recently.

Month after month, while terror pervaded the entire land; a hurried rescue on a United States destroyer, while death-dealing attacks and massacres reigned in Smyrna; a trip across Europe, the sight of the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor, and home to sunny southern California—such is her story, stripped of its interesting sidelights.

Miss Craig said she had been in Smyrna but a short time when the recent outburst came—the Turks' objection to the teaching of Christianity, and the seemingly never-ending siege that followed.

Just when hope of rescue for several hundred Americans seemed farthest away there came to the rescue ship, according to Miss Craig, The refugees were taken to Athens and later wended their way across Europe to France and then to America.

WASHINGTON—An intensive search for rare metals in the United States has been begun by the Bureau of Mines.

Although the mineral resources of the United States are not surpassed by those of any other country, officials of the bureau declared, it is nevertheless true that certain needed minerals exist in this country only in inadequate amounts, or are almost entirely lacking.

"Future exploration" it was stated, may disclose supplies of some of these minerals, but probably will not, as the known geological conditions lead to the belief that they will not be found.

"However, no chances are being taken that such deposits be overlooked, and so the rare and precious metals experiment station of the bureau at Reno, Nev., has undertaken, as one of its principal functions, the discovery, through samples which are sent in to it, of new sources of supply of those rare metals which have never been found in large quantities in the United States."

A special effort is being made by the station to discover sources of platinum, nickel, tin, vanadium, tungsten, cobalt, antimony, chromite and zirconium.

Practical Housekeeping by Florence Austin Chase

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS IN WINTER DIET

Besides meat to make muscle, starch to furnish quick energy, and fat to afford reserve force, the body needs the eliminating qualities of fresh fruits and vegetables to cleanse the blood and keep the waste channels awake and active.

As in the diet for spring and summer the fresh vegetable has a definite place in the winter diet—not only green vegetables, but also all that are not canned, as beets, carrots, turnips, parsnips, oyster plant, onions and cabbages. None of these lose their salts and acids when taken from the ground, although the water is somewhat evaporated, causing a withered appearance. When vegetables are withered in appearance, cover with cold water and let stand for one-half hour.

Of the green vegetables peculiar to the winter season celery is generally the most available. As it contains a generous proportion of salts or minerals it is peculiarly valuable as blood food. Watercress, endive, lettuce and parsley may be obtained throughout the year in city markets, and are a valuable asset to the winter menu. Since we have learned that the leafy variety of vegetables are rich in vitamins, we are careful to include one of them in the dinner salad. There are very few times when we can not have lettuce and cabbage in the stores and these make very acceptable salads when served with one of the many deliciously appetizing salad dressings.

Cranberries are at their best this month and they should be used frequently. The cranberry is known as a liver stimulant, its large percentage of citric acid serving to counteract the overburden of fat food products. Its iron is a splendid blood purifier. Like the greens of the spring diet the cranberry has a definite and neglected place in the winter menu, its persistent use serving in many cases to assuage the doctor's bill.

Oranges, lemons and grapefruit may also be added to the list of the winter's tonic fruits, any one containing a specific amount of citric acid. Whenever they can be obtained, grapes are an unequalled winter fruit, bringing tartrates of soda, potash, phosphoric acid, lime, magnesia and iron to the body in such form as to be almost immediately assimilated into the blood.

Winter meals must be planned so that no one food predominates, so that they contain one protein (in the form of meat, fish, cheese, eggs or nuts), one fat besides butter, one or two starches, some fresh vegetables or fruit, and a sweet. If possible, and especially on cold days, the meal should begin with something hot, as a cup of soup or a little warm spiced grape juice, not because they produce warmth through their own heat, but because they stimulate the digestive juices to greater activity. It must be remembered, however, that it is necessary to work in an extra amount of fuel to overcome the wearing away of the tissues through oxidation, yet this must be done in such a way that nausea will not be produced. Meals consisting of starch and sugar are sure to produce sick headaches sooner or later. Both sugars and fats must be introduced generously into certain of the foods, the remainder of the foods consisting of other elements. To illustrate: Cabbage will take up one-third of its weight in fats, mashed potatoes one-half, baked potatoes three-fifths, and peas one-fourth. When the family seems to lack energy add extra olive oil or butter to the vegetables.

If the children seem to tire easily a quick energy food is probably needed. Prepare cocoa or apple sauce or pure home-made candy for them, making the cocoa and apple sauce a little sweeter than usual.

The colder the day the greater oxidation there is in the body. Active boys and girls use energy almost faster than they make it, which explains the calls for cookies, doughnuts, etc., between meals.

Channel Islanders Object to New Lord

LONDON—Inhabitants of two tiny Channel Islands—Herm, area 320 acres, and Jethou, area, 44 acres—are up in arms against the conduct of their new lord—Compton Mackenzie, famous novelist.

They have been believing that he intends to close the islands to their ordinary summer visitors and instead erect a casino for his own friends.

Mackenzie says they are laboring under false impressions. "I have leased the islands from the crown," he says. "Under the lease visitors have a 'privilege'—not a 'right'—to land in Herm and Jethou on two days a week, paying a toll of twelve cents each, of which the crown receives four cents and I the other eight. It would be neither to my interest nor to that of the 300 inhabitants to keep out visitors."

"It is untrue that I intend to convert the islands into a casino. What I am doing is converting the Little Mermaid Tavern into the Mermaid Inn, where a dozen paying guests can enjoy the air, shooting, fishing and in the future a game of golf."

"What I am aiming at is the establishment of a little country club on American lines. I only want the islanders to rely on my personal good will."

The inhabitants of the little Channel islands still regard themselves as independent of Great Britain. They still have their own governors, laws and curious language.

Irishman Says His Wife Drove Him Out

DUBLIN—There is another rebellion in Ireland, but this time it is a domestic rebellion. It's Pat Droarkien's own little rebellion. In fact, Pat is the rebellion.

Pat has applied to the courts to aid him, and has made charges against his wife. Pat is more than 70 years old and he claims that his second wife has left him homeless and penniless. He declares that soon after his marriage he transferred a 14-acre farm, five head of cattle and a pony and trap to his wife. In return she—

Refused to allow him to sit in the arm chair he had used for 20 years.

Ordered him from the house and made him stand in the stable. Beat him and pulled him out of bed and threatened to do for him with the tongue.

Told the servant to pour kerosene over him so that she might set him on fire.

In fact, Pat claims he was so roughly handled by his bride that he had to go to an infirmary, and while there his wife disposed of his home.

Mrs. Pat denies the allegations, but the judge issued a restraining order against her.

Church for Homeless Becomes Too Popular

LONDON—The historic old church of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, which has for many years provided lodging for the homeless, says it is too popular.

"Too many tramps and revellers are filling the church each night," Rev. Dick Smith, the vicar, says.

M. D.'s Won't Tell Patients' Secrets

LONDON—Determination to keep the secrets of patients inviolate in courts of law was voiced by 200 delegates at the preliminary meeting of the British Medical Association at Glasgow.

Since this question was first put to issue in the courts there has been nationwide discussion on the topic, most of the judges being of the opinion that a doctor should reveal everything about his patient, while the doctors contend that what a patient tells a doctor regarding his life and condition should be as a sealed book and that they are in honor bound not to reveal one iota of a patient's history.

The discussion waxed fast and furious at the meeting of the association, various doctors giving evidence of so-called "persecution" by judges attempting to make them speak. Many of the delegates voiced the opinion that doctors must be prepared to go to prison rather than divulge their patients' secrets.

The association adopted a motion promising support to any members who, after due consideration, were deemed justified in refusing to disclose information obtained in the exercise of their professional duties. It was also resolved to press for special consideration for medical witnesses in courts of law.

SPORTS CHATTER

By BILL UNMACK
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

Followers of polo, not only on the Pacific Coast but throughout the country will be interested in the outcome of the venture being made in California of a regular circuit, not only for the playing of a schedule of games, but also with a view to interesting the public, something that has been attempted in various sections of the country without much success.

Cities such as Coronado, Riverside, Del Monte and other centers where there are excellent playing fields are aware of the value of the game and are regularly enlisted to try to promote it. While it may be possible that these communities are not altogether free from doing so for their own personal interests, at the same time, credit must be accorded them for endeavoring to foster the game. In this they seem to be doing somewhat better than the East.

Followers of the game are aware that, for some time, an effort has been made to popularize the game with the public with indifferent success. There is no reason why the amusement loving public should not like the game, for it has every detail that appeals. The trouble has been that the mass of the people have come to look on the sport as one for kings in which the plebeian has little or no right.

To major Allan Pinkerton belongs the greater part of the credit that has been achieved in this direction on the Pacific coast and he is working whole heartedly along lines which he hopes will achieve a success. He has imported Juan Fuentes, one of the best known stable managers of the country to take charge of his stables, while with him is Del Owens, recognized as one of the best of the wild horsemen of the great Wild West.

Other men whose names are mentioned in the circuit venture are Samuel F. E. More, the former Yale football captain, who has taken a keen interest in polo for the last decade, C. H. Dam-mors, retired naval officer of the British navy, Harry East of New York City, Walter Dupre, Ralph Burnham, and others.

Major Pinkerton states that the Hawaiian team of U. S. Army officers have received the necessary permission to visit the mainland. They will visit Riverside and Coronado and play at the other points of the circuit where the regular tournament contests will be held. The Vancouver team of British Columbia also is another aspirant for honors on the California polo fields, and will remain in the state for an indefinite period. It is planned by the clubs to rent polo ponies for the season or a shorter period and poloists will be able to purchase mounts. This will save visiting players from shipping their mounts to the coast, an item of considerable expense.

The public, which has a deeply ingrained idea that polo is for the rich alone, will need a lot of nursing to make it take to the game. The question is: will the powers that be in polo have the patience to play out the game with them.

PRIMA DONNA GETS IN FORM

So arduous does Cyrena Van Gordon, prima donna of the Chicago Opera, find the roles of the Wagnerian operas that she has engaged Benny Yanger, a former lightweight, known in ring circles as the Tipton Slasher, to give her instructions in the manly art. The two of them have lively bouts twice a week and Miss Van Gordon says the exercise is fine for breath control. She is something of an athlete, having once scored a knockout on Prof. W. H. Sixsmith, the man who taught Roosevelt to box.

'Work and Tea' Is Longevity Panacea

LONDON—Work and a cup of tea at 5 a. m. every morning—that is the recipe for longevity that Lord Leverhulme is handing out now that he has passed his 71st birthday.

Lord Leverhulme admits that he is not a teetotaler, but he drinks only on rare and celebratory occasions. He doesn't spend much time with the newspapers, either, and that may account for the fact that he is still looked upon as a very active man, though well past the three score and ten mark.

"I keep fit by taking pleasure in my work," Lord Leverhulme said when asked how he had managed to dodge rheumatism, creaking backs and other signs of age. "Work is my greatest joy. It is that and regular habits which keep me well. I am never ill and so I am always happy."

"This is my normal day: 7:30 a. m.—Rise and spend twenty minutes in gymnastic exercises. 8:00—Shave and dress. 8:30—A cup of tea and as I sip it I begin attacking business reports."

7:30—Breakfast, consisting of tea, toast, bread and butter, jam or marmalade. No meat.

7:50—Read the newspapers, or as much of them as I can digest in ten minutes. 8:00—Read and reply to letters.

8:30—Motor to my office. 9:15 p. m.—Lunch in the office—cup of tea, two poached eggs, or a little cold meat.

11:30—"Forty winks." 12:15—Begin work again. 5:30—Motor home.

"I do not have business dinners, although I entertain to a fair extent. The evening is spent in social pleasures. I am very fond of dancing and of the theatre. If I am at home 10 p. m. I go to bed, taking no supper."

Akron Buys Whole Adjoining Village

AKRON, O.—In a few weeks Akron will own the Village of Botzum, known as Niles, Ohio, half a century ago and one of the oldest communities in this part of the country.

Akron council has obtained options on all the property in the village, except a bridge and the public square. For sentimental reasons ownership of these institutions has been denied, old settlers declaring they will not permit the sacrifice of turning their city park into a garbage disposal plant, which is the fate destined for the property when the buildings have been razed.

Harry M. Hagelbarger, law director of Akron, is now negotiating in an attempt to alter this viewpoint. The purchases include streets, dwellings, churches, stables, blacksmith shop, soft drink parlor and grand opera house, and the price agreed on is $15,000. The garbage plant is to cost $2,000,000.

It is said this is the first instance of a city purchasing in its entirety an adjacent village for any purpose.

Akron Children Get Free Dental Work

AKRON—Akron school children will be given free dental service. The board of education has appropriated $5000 for the first year's clinic, which will be in charge of a dentist and a nurse.

The WORLD OVER

By FRANKLIN B. MORSE
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

There are many followers of the ring who express the opinion that if Jess Willard is honestly desirous of regaining the heavyweight title, and is not merely asking another chance against Dempsey for the sake of taking another licking for the money there is in it, that he would be willing to take on some of the second raters to prove he is in condition. One of these ring enthusiasts expressed himself as follows:

"If Willard is in the shape he would have us believe, it ought to be easy money for him to get into the ring and bowl over three or four of the mediocre boxers, and at the same time pick up some change for himself. The impression Jess gives the public by holding out for Dempsey alone is that he is not sure of his condition and would rather take a good beating from Dempsey for a good fat purse, than to take a chance of being shown up in his first fight against a dub for a small purse and, incidentally, have all prospects of meeting Dempsey knocked galley west."

This is not an unreasonable attitude on the part of the fans and it might behoove Willard to take cognizance of it. Certainly if he thinks he can lick Dempsey he ought not to have any hesitancy to take on a few dubs. The question then is whether Willard knows in his heart he can't beat even a dub and is willing to bunk the public for the sake of a fat purse?

For a long time past, Strangler Ed Lewis the heavyweight wrestling champion has been willing to meet Dempsey in the ring for a mixed match — wrestler versus boxer. Just at the present time Dempsey has shown signs of interest in the offer although for the past six months or more he has scorned even to notice it.

Whether or not such a freak engagement ever could be brought about and consummated is a question, and the consensus of opinion is that it is unlikely the event ever will be pulled off. Can a wrestler beat a boxer is a question that has filled many a column of space in the years past and it is not likely that even if Lewis and Dempsey got into the ring and a verdict was returned that it ever would be a final and conclusive one. The proponents of the loser quickly would find reasons why that particular boxer or wrestler had been beaten. In fact there have been a number of these trials in the past. In some cases the boxer has been pinned and made helpless, while in others the wrestler has been pummeled into submission.

There is no doubt that a match of the sort between the two acknowledged champions of the world in their respective specialties would draw a good house.

Baseball Conflict Narrowly Averted

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 8.—A Ban Johnson-Landis conflict has been averted.

Baseball men, the few remaining over here following the adjournment of the meeting of the National Association of Professional Leagues, asserted today that this fact was the most interesting development of the session. The "clash" between the two powers in baseball that had been anticipated failed to materialize. All disturbance relative to where the major leagues will meet seems to have subsided.

Judge Landis called a joint meeting for New York next Thursday. Johnson called the annual session of the American league for Chicago next Tuesday. That will allow plenty of time for the club owners to make the trip to go to both meetings.

The national game is going to be thrown into the courts again. Counsel for William Klepper, owner of the Portland, Ore., club, who was barred from baseball for life, remained in Louisville today. He said he intends to institute a suit on the basis that a man may not be deprived of his property except by due process of law. No truces of magnitude were negotiated.

Klepper Will Fight Oblivion Sentence

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 8.—It is one blinky thing after another with the Portland baseball club. The ukase of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, in barring William H. Klepper, president of the Portland team, certainly is another—fans hope the last—straw to upset a team, sadly in need of rebuilding.

Klepper's life sentence to oblivion is the talk of fandom here today. That he will fight the order in the courts is the opinion of directors of the Portland club and the rank and file of fans. It will likely be a battle to a finish to protect constitutional, personal and property rights of the Portland prexy, say those who admit they know.

Each month of the past baseball season here brought an "ides of March" omen and tragedy to the Portland team.

Jack Dempsey Says He's Ready to Fight

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—"I'm ready and willing to fight Jess Willard or anybody else with whom my manager, Jack Kearns, signs the papers. Let Willard get a promoter to put over a return match with me and I'll be there in plenty of time."

Such was the statement of Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, today.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The so-called "jackrabbit," or lively ball, is in baseball to remain, all accounts of its proposed demise being premature, not to say greatly exaggerated.

This much on the more or less valid assurances of Judge Landis and John A. Heydler, who either know what they are talking about or carbohic acid is a very excellent mouth-wash. Both, speaking semi-officially, have declared that no legislation looking toward the removal of the rabbit has been contemplated and none will be they further state.

"I think the majority of the fans favor free hitting," Judge Landis said upon the occasion of a recent visit to New York, "and I see no reason to curb something that has become a distinct feature of the game. The shout that goes up from the stands every time someone hits a home run should be simply convincing as to the sentiment of the public on this subject. I have yet to hear anyone hiss a home run."

And, we might add, the judge would grow long ears waiting for any good play on a ball field to be hissed. The absence of such a demonstration proves less than nothing, however.

A home run is an individual feat, just as are the strike out, the stolen base, a running catch in the outfield and countless features of a ball game. They are not hissed, but that doesn't prove either their popularity or unpopularity. A player may be hissed for what he represents to the stands, never for what he accomplishes on the ball field.

However, we digress. Heydler also stands firmly behind the rabbit, which means that the National League is for it as a body. Ban Johnson is the only dissenter, and he is by no means unalterably opposed to it. Ban would have home-run zones established in certain parks, but the silence that greets his suggestion is almost deafening.

As a matter of fact, the magnates are virtually unanimous in their opinion that the slugging game is a permanent institution with the fans and as such not to be tampered with. Its only real enemies are a few managers and all pitchers.

The remarks of Landis and Heydler would seem to have effectively disposed of all talk of impending reform, but the suggestion that pitchers be given greater latitude in the matter of deliveries appears to have few friends.

It is estimated that there are 750,000 sorts of insects, without counting parasitic creatures.

Carp are said to reach the century mark in age.

There are about 10,000 species of fish known.

"How dare you?" she cried, attempting to seize the telephone from Billy's grasp.

He turned his huge frame between her and the instrument. "Get a move on!" he shouted into the mouthpiece. "Goodbye!" and he hung up.

Then he turned back toward the angry girl.

"Look here," he said. "Once you were strong on the job stuff with me, tell me how noble I was, an' all de different things you would do fer me to repay all I done fer you. Now youse got de chanse."

"What do you mean?" asked the girl, puzzled. "What can I do you?"

"Youse kin do dis fer me. When Mallory gits here youse kin tell him dat de engagement is all on again—see?"

In the wide eyes of the girl Billy read a deeper hurt than he had dreamed of. He had thought that it would not be difficult for her to turn back from the vulgar mucker to the polished gentleman. And when he saw that she was suffering, and guessed that it was because he had tried to crush her love by brute force he could carry the game no further.

"O Barbara," he cried, "can't you see that Mallory is your kind—that he is a fit mate for you. I have learned since I came into this house a few minutes ago the unbridgeable chasm that stretches between Billy Byrne, the mucker, and such as you. Once I aspired; but now I know just as you must have always known, that a single lifetime is far too short for a man to cover the distance from Grand Avenue to Riverside Drive."

"I want you to be happy, Barbara, just as I intend to be. Back there in Chicago there are plenty of girls on Grand Avenue as straight and clean and fine as they make 'em on Riverside Drive. Girls of my own kind, they are, and I'm going back there to find the one that God intended for me. You've taught me what a good girl can do toward making a man of a beast. You've taught me pride and self-respect. You've taught me so much that I'd rather that I'd died back there beneath the spears of Oda Iseka's warriors than live here beneath the sneers and contempt of servants, and the pity and condescension of your friends.

"I want you to be happy, Barbara, and so I want you to promise me that you'll marry Billy Mallory. There isn't any man on earth quite good enough for you; but Mallory comes nearer to it than anyone I know. I've heard 'em talking about him around town since I came back—and there isn't a rotten story chalked up against him nowhere, and that's a lot more than you can say of ninety-nine of a hundred New Yorkers that are talked about at all."

"And Mallory's a man, too—the kind that every woman ought to have, only they ain't enough of 'em to go 'round. Do you remember how he stood up there on the deck of the Lotus and fought fair against my dirty tricks? He's a man and a gentleman, Barbara—the sort you can be proud of, and that's the sort you got to have. You see I know you."

Daily News Letter

General News and Gossip from Staff Writers at Home and Abroad.

TODAY—"The government," so far as news is concerned, is no longer located at No. 10 Downing street, writes David M. Church, London correspondent. Bonar Law has adopted a radically changed policy with regard to the publication of news.

TOMORROW—George R. Holmes, Washington correspondent, discusses on the species Lame Duck of the genus politician. They usually nest in Washington, after periodic political debates, to escape the sympathy or sarcasm they would encounter at home, Mr. Holmes indicates.

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—No. 10 Downing street, for the last six years the most important spot in the British empire, is no longer the nerve-center of the Imperial government.

The British prime minister still dwells and works in historic No. 10, but the nerve-center has been torn into shreds and scattered all over London.

Bonar Law, unlike his predecessor, Lloyd George, is not the government—he is merely prime minister.

Persons who formerly sought information from No. 10 Downing street are now referred to the various government departments. No. 10 disclaims all knowledge of affairs and displays an "ignorance" that is also most alarming.

In the days of Lloyd George the Downing street secretariat was full of information and knew what was transpiring in every government department. The present secretariat disclaims knowledge of everything.

The daily press conferences at Downing street have been discontinued, and lucky indeed is the newspaperman who can even gain entrance to No. 10. It was explained to newspapermen when the conferences were discontinued that Downing street had become "a dope box and the cover was lifted twice daily." The new government thought this condition undignified, or at least unwise, and thus the representatives of the press are no longer welcome guests at No. 10.

The American press in London still has a good friend in Sir Arthur Willert, formerly Washington correspondent of the London Times. Sir Arthur is an American adviser in the foreign office and has been designated as a liaison officer between the British government and the American press.

The policy of the new government, however, is a "hush-hush" policy, and little or no information seeps out these days.

Lloyd George in his administration frequently issued public statements, and whenever he had a crisis on his hands appointed Sir Edward Grigg as his spokesman. The public then, at least, had an idea as to what movements were being made by the government.

Under Bonar Law the public is left in the dark. The newspaper correspondents rarely make flat statements of fact, but the newspapers are full of conjecture, some of it the wildest sort of conjecture.

Smarting under the "hush-hush" policy the newspaper proprietors of England are becoming restive and threaten a campaign to try to open the sources of information which have been closed. There is grave doubt, however, whether they can act in co-operation, and even if so, whether they would be able to bring about any change.

"I will make no bargains with the press," said Bonar Law when he opened his campaign, and although he referred to "political bargains" when he made the statement, it seems that he expressed one of his general policies.

Are Americans mixing in British politics? This question is mooted in the political clubs of London. It's all on account of prohibition. Lady Astor made the open charge during her recent campaign that American influences were at work to bring about her defeat. She declared that anti-prohibition money from America had been spent to defeat her, because she is in favor of local option for England. On the other hand those who have fears of prohibition are inclined to the belief that American prohibition agencies are effectively and stealthily bringing their issue into British politics. This brings about a delicate situation, for the British are very touchy upon the subject of prohibition, and if they once found that American interests were actually involved in their politics there would be an uproar which would be just as audible as that famous "shot heard round the world."

When Omar Khayyam sang "A Jug of Wine, a Loaf of Bread—and Thou" his lit became the excuse for many a bibble of wine. Now it seems that there will be no more jugs of wine beneath the Persian boughs, because Persia is on the road to prohibition. The Persian government is reported to be enforcing regulations which will make Persia as dry as Sahara, but let's make it as dry as New York. Persian ingenuity shouldn't be any less than American ingenuity.

In the middle of the coming summer Cyril Maude, the celebrated English actor, will make an American tour. He has chosen the dramatized version of "If Winter Comes" as his vehicle. This piece, in which Owen Nares, an English matinee idol, is now starring in England, has had a mixed reception. When it opened in the provinces the erudite critics predicted that it wouldn't last for long, but the provincials have continued paying admissions.

Beryl Rogers, 8 years old and a relative of the famous Anton Rubinstein, is being heralded as London's latest infant prodigy. She has mastered the piano and is already the composer of several melodies.

The flappers have a friend in Dr. J. Browning Alexander. He says that silk stockings are more hygienic than cotton or wool, even in London's decidedly wet climate.

THE LOUD SPEAKER

There is a well known saying that "you cannot get something for nothing." Some of the so-called loud speakers foisted on the market selling for a very small price aptly demonstrate this.

When broadcast music and speech is being received and it is desired to have volume enough to fill a room so that many persons may hear, a loud speaker is essential. The illustrated instrument may be employed to advantage. It is but necessary to remove the plug of the telephone unit, placing the loud speaker plug in its place.

This speaker is equipped with a super-sensitive sound producing device which changes into incoming electrical impulses into sound waves, furnishing music and speech with a tone of clarity identical to that of the transmitted music and speech.

NEW YORK—Superintendent Boylan of the Bronx public

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY HELPS ALICE SEW.

One day, as Uncle Wiggily was hopping through the woods, looking for an adventure, he chanced to pass the pen house where the Wibblewobble family of ducks lived. The bunny rabbit gentleman looked in the window, friendly like, intending to wish them good morning, when he happened to see Alice, one of the Wibblewobble duck girls, sitting in a chair.

At the same time Uncle Wiggily looked at a clock on the wall and saw that it was nearly school time.

"My goodness, Alice!" cried the bunny gentleman, hopping into the duck house. "Don't you know that it's nearly time for school? You'll be late and the lady mouse teacher will make you stay in the hollow stump school after the others go home if you're late."

"I know it, Uncle Wiggily," quacked Alice, but I can't help it."

"Well, why don't you hop up and flutter on to school?" asked the bunny gentleman. "Why are you sitting there with the clock ticking its way on toward nine and—"

"I must finish this sewing," said Alice, who was pushing a needle and thread through and

He gave one look through the hem of a dress she was wearing. "I tore a hole in my dress when I was getting ready for school, Uncle Wiggily," quacked the duck girl, "and I can't go to my class until I sew up the hole. Lulu has gone and mother had to hurry down town shopping, so there is no one to help me sew."

"Except that I might help you," offered Uncle Wiggily, shy like and bashful, as he twinkled his pink nose.

"You, Uncle Wiggily?" cried Alice, holding her needle in the air. "Can you sew?"

"Not very well," admitted the bunny. "But I see that the hole is in the back of your dress. It is hard for you to see it because you must turn half way around to reach it. That is why it takes you such a long time. You'll surely be late."

"Now I am not very clever with needle and thread. But at least I could pull together the sides of the hole in your dress, and it would do until you could get to school. There the lady mouse teacher might sew it for you," said the bunny gentleman.

"Oh, yes, she would, Uncle Wiggily," quacked Alice eagerly.

"And it is very good of you to offer to help me sew. As you say, the hole is away around on the back of my dress, and I've half twisted my neck off turning to see what I'm doing. I haven't time to change to another dress now. So please help me by sewing up the hole as best you can until I get to school."

"Come and sit over on the window seat," invited Uncle Wiggily. "I'll have more room there."

Alice gave Uncle Wiggily the needle and thread. So far the duck girl had taken only two or three stitches in her torn dress, and these stitches were easily pulled out. Then Alice sat down on the broad window seat, her back toward the bunny gentleman, and Uncle Wiggily, with the needle and thread in his paw, began to sew on the duck girl's dress.

"Sew as fast you can, please, Uncle Wiggily," begged Alice, "as I don't want to be late for school."

"I'll hurry," promised the rabbit, pushing out of his way a satin sofa cushion that was on the window seat. In and out around the edges of the hole in Alice's dress Uncle Wiggily pushed the needle and thread, pausing now and then to rest his paw on the sofa cushion. At last it was finished.

"There you are, Alice!" cried the rabbit at last. "Your dress is sewed and you may hurry on to school. Flutter as fast as you can, and I think you will not be late."

Up jumped Alice. Then a funny look came over her face.

"Oh, see what you've done, Uncle Wiggily!" she quacked, trying not to laugh. "Just look!"

"What have I done?" asked the bunny.

"You have sewed me fast to the sofa cushion!" quacked Alice. "Fast to the sofa cushion! Oh, what shall I do?"

"I—have—sewed—you—fast—to—the-sofa—cushion!" cried Uncle Wiggily, his pink nose twinkling very fast. "Oh, my goodness!"

"I can't go to school with the sofa cushion sewed fast to me!" quacked Alice, "and there is no time to unsew it."

"You must go with it fastened to you!" decided the bunny. "There is no time to lose. As it is my fault I'll hop to school with you and help carry the cushion. When we get there the lady mouse can unsew it."

Well, you can imagine how funny Alice looked going to school with a sofa cushion sewed fast to her torn dress, and Uncle Wiggily hopping by her side carrying the cushion in his paws. They could not, themselves, help laughing. But at last they reached the hollow stump school. Of course the lady mouse teacher and all the animal children were much surprised.

But the lady mouse soon snipped the cushion loose from Alice's dress, and the duck girl wasn't late after all. And they said Uncle Wiggily was really quite clever.

So it all happened for the best, you see. And after all this, if our cat doesn't try to walk tight rope on the clothes line and fall into the egg basket, I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily and Jimmie's jam. Copyright, 1922, by McClure News-Paper Syndicate.

RADIO EXPLAINED

BY LIEUT. JOHN R. IRWIN
INSTRUCTOR U. S. AIR SERVICE

THE LEAD PLATE BATTERY

If a cell is repeatedly charged and discharged at its normal rate, as indicated by the manufacturer's name plate, the amount of lead sulphate formed will be small and not harmful. However, if the battery is misused, for instance, charged and discharged at an excessive rate, or perhaps allowed to be idle when in a run down condition, there will be formed an excessive deposit of lead sulphate. As the crystals of sulphate increase they crowd out the active materials, stresses are formed and the plates disintegrate or buckle. This renders the cell into such a condition that it is almost impossible to repair, and certainly the battery will never be normal again.

Storage batteries of all types, both lead and alkaline are graded when manufactured and rated according to ampere hour capacity. This capacity is generally expressed by the maker on the name plate as the rate of charge or discharge. The larger the plate the greater may be the current used from it. For example, a forty ampere hour battery should yield one ampere for forty hours, or to put it another way, ten amperes for four hours. If, however, five amperes is the rate mentioned on the normal discharge and charge rate of the cell it should only be discharged at that rate and also recharged at that rate, which would give the normal usefulness as five amperes for eight hours.

Batteries are seldom used as they are intended, and it is thus that so many experimenters have considerable trouble and do not enjoy the full life of the cell.

VALUE OF ART IS TOLD BY STUDENT

Its Appreciation Beautifies Our Lives and Our Homes, Is Claim

By RUTH DANA

When I speak of the value of art to some people they invariably say: "The value of art? Why, I don't see much value to it. We like art and like to look at beautiful pictures, but I really don't think that art is worth while." My answer to such a question has been and always will be that I consider art one of the most valuable possessions we have. Think of this world without art. I am sure it wouldn't be a very happy place to live in. Ever since the world began, people have had art. The Indians had their beadwork, their pottery, their blankets and rugs were woven a pattern. Their pottery and blankets were all decorated with artistic symbols.

In all the ages we have had art, and it has progressed just like everything else until we find it as it is today. Every time we turn around we find a new use for the knowledge of art.

A person will say: "Why, I don't want to take art. I can't draw." But in art we do many other things besides drawing, and I think there isn't a person who wouldn't get some value out of an art course. Business men and people following almost any trade need art.

Its Various Uses

A dressmaker must know the kind of dress that is suitable for the type of person for which it is designed. Take a tall, slender person and dress her in a garment with a long panel, the whole length of the front, with knife plaits up the side of the skirt, and a long "V" shaped neck, and a long collar. Then let her wear a turban. She will look twice as slender as she would if she wore a dress with horizontal lines.

On the other hand, take a stout person; if she wears a dress with an all over pattern and broad flowing sleeves, a round neck, and with tucks and ruffles all over the skirt, she will look twice as stout.

Now take the value of art to business. Every day business men are learning what a great financial advantage it will be to them if they study art. The common assumption is that men need not concern themselves with anything so effeminate as art, unless they are artists. But a most elementary study of business will reveal that the knowledge of art is a business asset and not a force to be underestimated in a business career.

The merchant should study art. With this knowledge as a basis he will be able to choose between the ugly and the beautiful and will demand goods of merit. It is possible for him more than anyone else to raise our standards of material by giving the public goods of high quality. By his knowledge of art he will increase his sales, for he will be able to dress his windows more attractively, and show windows are really the salesmen which speak to the people as they pass by on the street. There is nothing, no matter how small, but what is worth making beautiful.

Attracts Attention

Another thing which should be remembered is that hardly a day goes by that we do not receive some circular in the mail; and because we receive so many of these, they must be artistic and catchy or they will land in the waste paper basket without so much as a second glance. We must not neglect the value of art in the home. One does not need money to make the home artistic. One needs just the knowledge of color and what color combinations should be used. If the papering and woodwork are of a dark brown, or gray, one would want a touch of some bright color, such as orange to enliven it. But no one would want the walls papered in red or orange because they could not stand it. Those colors are exciting and anyone surrounded by them long enough would become nervous or irritable.

An example is quoted of a young couple who were on the verge of a divorce. Questions revealed that nothing more serious than a question of nerves was at the bottom of it. A friend dining there one night managed to become the family: "This red paper is enough to drive anyone mad. What you need is a change of wall paper, and not a change of wife." The paper was changed and there was no divorce.

Everybody uses color. At all points we are surrounded by it. Since it is such an important factor in our lives we should study to make the best use of it. We should realize that art is not just beautiful pictures, but something which we all need and which will help to make us more successful in a business way; and what is more important, it makes happier individuals.

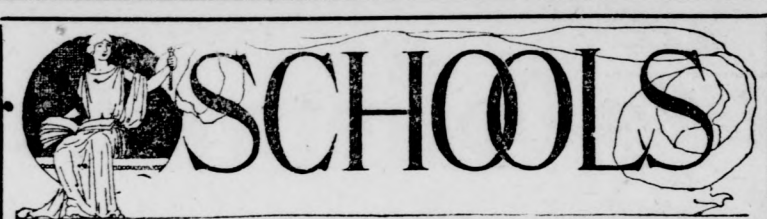

Forests

By DOROTHEA LANDES

"Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree."

These lines express very well the value of trees to mankind. If one tree is so precious then our forests must be thousands of times more precious, since they are made up of thousands of trees. Think of a vacation without shade or forests to offer shelter for Mother Nature's birds, animals and flowers that are so

My Ideal School

By VIRGINIA BIEN, '24

I had just (drowsily) finished the last experiences of Remi when I felt a vague, sleepy haze coming over my mind. I tried not to doze, but soon I felt myself floating, drifting, in nothingness. It became more clear and a man was at my side. He told me he was my guide.

We entered an archway and walked down a wide and sunny hall. I had indeed, a beautiful building and as I saw a sign reading "Football Game at 2:30. All Come and Root for the Team." I realized I was in a high school; and oh, such a wonderful building!

Along the corridors were wide, airy, clean rooms. There were interesting pictures on the walls, the blackboards were in such ideal places, the students all seemed so interested, the desks were so comfortable that I sighed with pleasure at the sight. All the rooms looked exactly alike from the hall, except the clear numbers on the doors, but what a difference inside. It was plainly seen some were English rooms, some French, some geometry and some art.

As I stood there I heard a bell ring and soon boys and girls came trooping into the halls. The boys were dressed in dark blue and the girls in dark blue and white. How happy and interested they looked. In less than two minutes they had all disappeared and curiously no one had seemed to notice me. Soon my guide appeared again and we went on to the next wing.

Here the halls and outside appearance of the rooms looked just like the other wings, but from the inside one could tell these rooms were devoted to science. Likewise the south wing was devoted to household arts and the north wing to mechanics.

My guide asked me if I would care to visit a class room. I told him yes and wished myself to a French room. In a moment I was seated at the back of a clean, sunny room. The students who were evidently higher classmen were speaking fluent French. How interested they were and how eager they were to recite. For this day the girls had dressed dolls as French persons and the boys were making them in a small French play and speaking for them. When the bell rang I think I was not the only person who left the class with reluctant feet.

Outside the door my guide came to my side and took me to the court. The four wings of the building surrounded its green and red beauty. The lawn was beautifully kept and was quite in touch with white, winding walks, white fountains and scarlet flowers.

A few steps from the building of the four wings stood the athletic buildings. How wonderfully they were equipped, what clean, inviting dressing rooms, and what an ideal swimming pool! As I sat down to rest a moment the guide started to tell me of the ventilation, the tennis and volleyball courts, the football field, of the information offices, of the systems of issuing announcements and cards, of the wonderful theatre with its perfect stage, of the library, of the hospital, of the rest rooms, of the efficient cafeteria, oh, so many things. All I can remember is that they were all perfect in every detail.

Suddenly something seemed to push me to the edge of the pool. I realized I was alone. I was coming nearer and nearer. As I stood on the brink I saw reflected in the water the face of Remi of my French theme. Suddenly I lunged forward and the cool water hit my face. How quickly I awakened. My teasing brother had thrown a cup of water in my face and cruelly broken up one of my most ideal and cherished dreams, an ideal school.

Interesting to watch. The forests are a very pleasant change from the noise and confusion of the cities.

In addition to affording us a delightful place for recreation and solitude, they render us a wonderful service here in the west by protecting the watersheds in the mountains and thus giving us a more even supply of water. The forests also purify the air, making it cooler and therefore more comfortable.

Wood is the main product from the forests. It is so necessary to mankind that we need not go into its uses in detail here. It is used in some way in the construction of all homes. Furniture is always made from wood with a few exceptions.

Paper, rosin and turpentine are also by-products that we must thank the forests for.

In view of all the benefits we enjoy from forests it would seem that it was everyone's duty to help lessen the number of forest fires. We have every summer. These fires destroy in a few minutes' time, trees that have taken hundreds of years to grow and perhaps the trees that are destroyed we may never hope to replace.

Education

By WILLIAM REEVES, '25

Many boys and girls ask themselves the question: "Why go through high school?" when just about to enter. Of course, some decide to go on and complete it, while others decide to go to work. In the following I will endeavor to give examples to show why boys and girls should go through high school.

Lack of high school education is a social detriment, since a majority of people who have no high school education are socially inferior, and in five cases out of ten they can not even speak correctly. One humorous example of this is a man I know who never had any high school education. He speaks the plural of "year" "years." A common saying of his is: "That uz three year back when I uz in Oklahoma." He is a night watchman by profession, finding no jobs that require brains open to him.

Let us take two other persons, one did go through high school and one that didn't. We first see them where one is busy completing high school, while the other has a job paying twenty-five dollars a week. When the other has graduated and is looking for work, he finds a job at fifteen dollars a week. As he sits working, he sees the other pass with a new leather overcoat. He finds himself fervently wishing he had not completed high school.

But, in his spare time, knowing how to study, he learns how his employer wants him to work, and studies to do this. Consequently, he is raised to a higher position with twice as much salary. Meanwhile, the other has not had a raise. He at first complained himself on the "easy" job he had, requiring physical and no mental force.

Let us take these boys two to five years later. The one who did not go to high school is still plugging away at twenty-five dollars a week. Meanwhile his competitor has risen from clerk to manager of the plant in which he works, by improving his mind about the work, using his brains. The other knows only as much as he has learned from actual experience with his work, while his rival is well informed on everything that vitally involves the plant.

Therefore, with one risen from fifteen dollars a week to seventy-five, and still advancing, and the other at twenty-five dollars a week, with no hope for the future, the positive necessity of a high school education is evident.

Education

By MARJORIE MERRICK

Age 13, Wilson Avenue School

In studying the history of education we find that we have used the education of ancient people as a foundation for much of our modern learning. Egypt and Arabia, perhaps, have had more influence on modern knowledge than any other two countries.

The common masses of Egypt had no learning as the knowledge of literature, art and mathematics was confined to the priests.

The civilization of Egypt was partially lost through the conquests of Greece. The Phoenicians acquired some of the Arabians' learning and gave it to the Greeks. The Greeks advanced in the arts and excelled in sculpture. When Rome conquered Greece, they took their art and vulgarized it.

The best thing we get in education from Rome is the law code. During the later time of Rome, Christianity was growing, and during the Dark Ages and the Middle Ages, after the Goths, the Visigoths, the Ostroths and the Vandals had conquered Rome, learning was kept alive in the monasteries where they taught a little Latin, Greek and a little astronomy.

During this time, the Moors in Spain were encouraging the arts and learning. To the Arabians we owe our mathematics, our ties, our astronomy.

The Renaissance was the rebirth of learning in Europe. As the people came to realize the value of education, schools of all sorts sprang up.

Very early in our history we realized the necessity of education. We realized that to have a good, strong country the minds of the people must be educated. The William and Mary College in Virginia was founded in 1693. In 1636, 400 pounds was voted for a public school in Massachusetts and two years later a man named Harvard left his library and some learning to this school, so it was called Harvard. The children went to private schools or else were taught by the clergymen and went to college in Europe.

The Ordinance of 1747 provided that when new states were made from the Western lands, one section in every township was reserved for school purposes. All states admitted after 1843 reserved two sections for school purposes. This was the beginning of the wonderful public school system of this country.

SHOP WORK ARTS ELEVATING STUDY

This Branch of Training at Union High Makes Good Men, Student Says

By FRED GLEASON

The mechanical arts as taught in the Glendale Union high school are a means of offering equal educational opportunities to all. Education and training along some definite line are essential to good citizenship because a good citizen must be fitted to hold some responsible position in life. The shop subjects develop the eye and hand as well as the brain and herein lies their usefulness. Any student who has taken a thorough course in the shop is fully competent to hold a position in a machine shop or architect's office.

As a preparation for vocational occupations the shop of Glendale Union high school offers splendid opportunities to those who have neither the time nor money to continue their education in higher institutions of learning, where the professions such as law, medicine, engineering and science are taught. On the other hand there is a certain class of people who have a natural talent and ability for machinery. Therefore the mechanical arts course is offered that these people may receive an equal opportunity to achieve success.

Shop Work Interesting

In regard to subjects that tend to make better citizens, the shop work is second to none. Accuracy, resourcefulness, patience, and skill are all qualities conducive to better citizenship, and these traits are developed to a high degree in the shop. In the woodwork department accuracy is the keynote. The student learns that he must measure the material before he saws it in order to obtain a correct fit. The forge pupil is given a piece of iron, for instance, and told to make a tool. The process includes the plan, various degrees of heating, and the final pounding into shape on the anvil. Here resourcefulness is developed. In machine shop and mechanical drawing the student gradually attains patience and skill so that he will be successful in everything he attempts.

Some persons possess the idea that the high school merely prepares one for college, but the mechanical arts have made equal opportunities in securing vocational education, as well as to develop qualifications that make for better American citizens.

Domestic Science

By MARGUERITE ECKLES, '23

The economic conditions confronting the American people today have made opportune a detailed study of the business of the household and of household finance.

The public schools have done much in enlightening girls upon the mystery of cost of living and it is still a subject to be considered and to be made of much importance as affects the conditions in the home.

Domestic science is now an important course given in the elementary schools, high schools and throughout the country and colleges and in some cases it is considered of so much importance as to make it a required subject. It is a very essential need in the schools.

We all realize the women are taking their place in the world in ever increasing numbers, they need a strong background in economics to support their increasing responsibilities. Domestic science centers about the home. It strives to give girls a realization of the importance of home-making in the development of the individual, and of the great part the home plays in the formation of the citizenship of the community and of the nation. Great stress is laid on hygiene and sanitation, including the study of bacteria and hygienic methods of cleaning.

These are great economic factors as the cost of living is much increased by illness, due to preventable disease. A two-year course is given in domestic science at our high school. The first year work is devoted to the study and preparations of foods. A systematic study is made of the production and manufacture of food materials, their wholesomeness and digestibility, nutritive value and cost, at the same time training is given constantly in neatness, order, foresight and personal responsibility.

The special aims are to teach the scientific principles underlying food preparation, skill in handling food materials and utensils, the preparation of simple meals, the selection and purchase of all food materials. In the second year the study of foods is continued with special emphasis in food values as related to the body. Meals are prepared and served in the model bungalow. A special study of the home and home needs is made in this course. It is offered to train the girl in her part of the household and civic work. It aims to give the girl a knowledge of the underlying principles of home making through the drawing of simple house plans, the study of home furnishings, the making of budgets and the practical management of the home. The girls are taught to estimate values, to decrease expenditures through the wise selection and use of materials; to study the method by which the home can be made wholesome with the least possible expenditure of energy, material, time and money.

All these things tend to give the girl a fuller knowledge of the care and management of a home and an idea of the responsibility connected with the home life. The girls of today will be the women of tomorrow, so let us promote in every way possible conditions which will make better citizens, better homes and a stronger nation.

ARTIST DISPLAYS PAINTINGS HERE

Rudolph Streit, Glendale Resident, Makes Showing In Local Store

Holiday shoppers in the heart of Glendale's business district ought to reserve a few minutes of their time to drop in to the Glendale Paint & Paper store at 119 South Brand boulevard to see the collection of water color paintings done by a Glendale resident and artist, Rudolph Streit of Pioneer Drive.

While the collection is composed of but seventeen pictures it is of varied interest and indicative of the artist's talent. The California scenes will be of most interest to the visitor for he will immediately recognize a shady grove in Verdugo Woodlands, a September day in Griffith Park or a winding road along the green Verdugo hills.

On the other hand he will enjoy scenes in Canada, sketches on the Great Lakes and an Italian scene.

Studies in Europe

Before coming to America, Mr. Streit studied with Professor Menzel, world-known artist, also in the Beaux Arts in Paris, and he spent a year in study in Italy. Arriving in America, Mr. Streit took up commercial poster work and was for many years one of the head artists with the Otis Lithograph company in Cleveland, Ohio. But one picture in his collection shows the work he did with the Otis people and this is the figure of the child called "Christmas Morning."

This picture shows a sleepy child loaded with the gifts of Santa Claus brought down the chimney during the night. It is just one of Mr. Streit's many fine pieces of work and the only criticism with its hanging upon the wall is that visitors are not able to scrutinize it closely and see the extremely fine brush work in picturing the soft texture of the child's skin and life-like expression of the child.

Besides being an artist, Mr. Streit is a linguist, speaking, and reading the French, Italian, German and English languages.

Honesty With Trade Pays, Says Grocer

"Truth in advertising; honesty in merchandising; reasonable profits on standard goods of quality; these principles followed logically, build up a business which has a real foundation of confidence in the community of which it is a part."

These are the words of J. A. Daley, president of Daley's Rock Bottom groceries, comprising a chain of nearly 100 in southern California.

"Retail stores," he says, "will from time to time find themselves overstocked on certain lines of standard goods. The merchant is compelled to turn these goods into money to maintain his 'turnover' and release the capital tied up in this overstock. He needs it in his business."

Electronic Reaction Method Being Used

The Dr. Oley suite of offices at Glendale and Burbank, known as the "House of Wonder," have been enlarged and a three-room suite fitted up for the diagnosis and treatment of disease by the method known as the Electronic Reaction.

This department is now operating in charge of Drs. Lind and Lind, who have taken post-graduate work under the personal instruction of Dr. Abrams himself, in San Francisco.

Singers of Thirty Years Ago Return

BARBERTON, Ohio.—At a recent thirtieth anniversary service at the First Reformed Church of Barberton, M. L. Shook and H. B. Frase sang a duet, "Edwen Land," they sang thirty years ago. Their accompanist was Mrs. Ella Asdale, who performed the same service when they gave the duet a generation back. A score of communicants of thirty years' standing were present.

possible expenditure of energy, material, time and money.

All these things tend to give the girl a fuller knowledge of the care and management of a home and an idea of the responsibility connected with the home life. The girls of today will be the women of tomorrow, so let us promote in every way possible conditions which will make better citizens, better homes and a stronger nation.

NEW PLAN TO WRECK SHIPS

SINKING WARSHIPS BY WATER PRESSURE.

At the left is shown the usual type of air bomb making a direct hit on a battleship. The battleship's heavy protective deck minimizes the effect of the bomb. At the right is shown the manner in which the new bombs will be used by the army air service. The bomb is dropped near the battleship, not on it. Upon reaching a predetermined depth it explodes. The tremendous water pressure thus set up crushes in the fragile bottom of the dreadnaught and disables the engines through the condenser pipes.

Consolidation

By MAURICE WIDDOWS

Consolidation is now the approved method of changing very poor rural schools into very fine ones. It is the method that has made possible the equalizing of education, the hope that has been cherished by American educators since the founding of our nation. By consolidation I mean the strengthening and solidifying of the scattered rural school system by means of the combining or unionizing of several inferior schools into one strong, compact institution.

The success of this plan is shown by the fact that there are now over 12,000 successful consolidated schools in this country, and every year sees the establishment of new ones in considerable numbers. The reasons for this are numerous.

A school term of 180 to 200 days is made possible by consolidation. The lengthening of the term enables the teacher to emphasize more strongly the development of the child mentally and morally. Consolidation also makes possible the constructing of the right kind of buildings, with scientifically designed ventilating systems, and well lighted rooms. The consolidated rural school offers, also, the advantages of more play space, gardens, and outside laboratories, all of which may be obtained at a minimum cost. The consolidated rural school is always a big factor in the betterment of the community in the betterment of its own life to keep pace with the ideals set before the children. The country communities have always lacked the opportunities that the city has for general culture, but the consolidated school now furnishes a community center for recreation, music, art, oratory, and study of community and national problems.

Consolidated rural schools, standard in type, are rapidly coming to be counted among the strongest features of our great educational system and has been the result of an attempt to equalize from the bottom up. They have been created by concentrating the wealth and energy of areas that before consolidation dissipated their efforts on very poor kinds of schools. The consolidated schools will draw nothing from the top of the system, but on the contrary have added much to it. They equalize by bringing the poorest up not only to the average but to the best.

Above Valley's Rim

By EDITH THOMPSON

13 Years, Wilson Avenue Intermediate.

The Yosemite Valley covers eight square miles out of more than 1100 square miles in the Yosemite National Park. The park above the rim is less visited principally because it is not known. It was never opened to the public by road until 1915. Even now, except for several leading into the valley, there are only two roads above the rim. Of these only one crosses the park from side to side.

This land is located on the western slope of the Sierra Nevada mountains. The rivers that water it start from the everlasting snows. Many icy streams converge to make the rivers. They flow west through many high peaks, winding in and out, stopping by snow-belted lakes, flowing through fruitful valleys, rushing over rocky heights and swinging in and out of the High Sierra mountains.

From Glacier Point a magnificent view of the High Sierras may well be enjoyed. Spread before one are large domes, the pinnacles, the waterfalls dominating all and Half Dome, a mythical seat of an Indian maiden.

A few steps from the hotel one may look down into Yosemite Valley more than a half mile below. Automobiles look like moving specks, tents white dots, the Merced river a silver tracing on green velvet.

It is the land of sunshine. Rain is almost unknown. It is the ideal camping-out ground.

Never meddle with a hornet or a man who is minding his own business.

Trouble soon pines away and dies if neglected.

Radio

By DONALD MURRAY

Wilson Ave. School. Age 13.

The value of Radio to the world today is exceedingly great. What it will be in the future is inconceivable. In the city it is very widely used by the public for entertainment, news, market reports and so forth. But there all these things are easily accessible. In the country, where these things are not possible it is a Godsend. The farmer can get the market price of his hogs, grain and other produce, the latest news, music of all kinds, and sermons on Sunday as well as many other helpful things. It is doing more than any previous invention to help the farmer and bring him and his family into closer relations with the rest of the world. There are approximately 600,000 radio receiving sets in the United States in use today.

But the value of Radio to the public is only a small phase of its great usefulness to the world. The radiogram does away with uncertain cables and telegraph wires. The radio lighthouse sends out calls, thereby guiding ships at sea both day and night with less possibility of uncertainty than the old system. Commercial radio communication in general is where two parties can talk at any distance, at any time, over land and sea alike. All these things are aiding commerce to an extent never before thought possible.

Lately a new invention has been completed which is called the radio typewriter, by means of which a man can sit down and write a letter to his friend on his typewriter and have his friend receive the letter immediately with nothing between them but ether. This invention is in its infancy but it has been done, and in time will probably be in general use. Of course the paper is not really sent, in reality vibrations are sent, which are picked up at the other end of the line and put through delicate instruments which operate a typewriter.

Use of Gunpowder

By HARTLEY HOFFMAN

Age 12, Wilson Avenue School

The methods of modern warfare have been changed greatly from the methods of ancient warfare by the introduction of gunpowder. When one thinks of gunpowder he views its use as being destructive and it is. However, sometimes we use its destructive powers for a good purpose.

The one who first invented gunpowder has been known, although it originated in China. Berthold Schwartz, a German monk of the fourteenth century was the one who introduced firearms in the western countries.

The core of a modern rifle bullet is made of lead, covered with a coat of nickel or steel. It is oval in shape and has a rather sharp point. Each soldier in action carries about one hundred bullets, his supply being replaced by ammunition carts.

The range of a modern rifle is 3000 yards. The big guns use shells weighing a ton or more, and have a range varying from seventeen to twenty miles. The Germans perfected a gun with a range of twenty-six miles.

The torpedo is the most effective weapon on the naval side of warfare. The most powerful torpedo can travel six miles on its own power without stopping. In the head of the torpedo there is from 150 to 250 pounds of gunpowder. The torpedoes are driven by compressed air motors. The compartment that has the motors in it has holes in the sides so the water can get in and cool the motors. The average torpedo travels about thirty miles an hour.

Dynamite was invented by A. Noble in 1866. Dynamite is thirteen times as much power as common gunpowder. It ranks so far below recently discovered explosives that it was little used in the world war. In the great fire of San Francisco dynamite was used to keep the fire from spreading. Dynamite used for commercial purposes is put up in sticks eight inches long and from one to three inches thick.

Honesty is the best policy, but too many people fail to keep the premiums paid up.

MAYBE DARWIN WAS CORRECT

The far famed "missing link" for which scientists have been searching for many years, has been located, at least so thinks Mrs. Wanda Helbig who has just returned to the United States from Borneo, where she declares she saw a tribe of natives that looked half monkeys and half like humans. Maybe Darwin was correct.

ELDER JAPANESE STATESMEN GOING

Old Genro's Lease on Life Is Limited; Can Never Be Replaced

By JAMES MCCLAIN
For International News Service.

TOKIO — Old Japan is fast changing. The last of the famous Elder Statesmen of the Meiji era has relinquished his government post. Only two of the Genro remain—Prince Matsukata (he has just been promoted from a marquis) and Prince Salomon. Matsukata has just retired as Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, his last post.

The two are very old, well in the eighties. Salomon has been ill for months, and Matsukata is fast failing. The two, particularly Matsukata, made Baron Kato Premier last spring. When the time comes they will probably remove him and name his successor, but that will be about the last of their making and unmaking of ministries.

Vicecount Hirata, possibly the strongest man in Japan next to the two Genro, who for thirty years was constantly at Prince Yama-gata's elbow, is the new Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal. His appointment is a decided victory for the Choshu clan, the first in many months since the popular cry for disarmament turned sentiment from them. Hirata since the death of Yamagata in February, has been possibly second only to General Baron Tanaka in leading the old clan.

Cannot Be Replaced
There has been much written about the Genro's lease on life.
Will they continue? Certainly not the old Genro—they cannot be replaced. No one can fill the shoes of Ito, Okuma, Inouye, Oyama, Yamagata, Matsukata and Salomon.

They ushered Japan through the critical stage of the first transition. The word of the two surviving Elder Statesmen is practically law. When they, too, go there probably will be a new Genro, but not a perpetuation of the old Genro by the injection of new blood. Hirata and others, particularly Admiral Count Yamamoto of the Satsuna clan, are consulted much now. When the time comes they may form a new dictatorial clique which will hold a sway over the country due to the power of their word with the throne. But Matsukata and Salomon are not admitting them to the innermost councils of the old Genro, and when they die the famous statesmen of the Meiji era will be gone forever.

Bound by Robbers; Then Told History

AKRON, O.—Blindfolded and bound with wire, Oliver Goldsmith, a watchman, enjoyed the doubtful privilege of listening to three yegmen blast open and rob the safe in the offices of the Acme Stores company here. Police are working on clues obtained through Goldsmith, who repeated conversations carried on carelessly by the burglars. They treated the helpless watchman jocularly, and made no threats to harm him.

He heard one of the yegs boast of having learned his profession while serving a "bit in str." otherwise, a term in the penitentiary.

Another referred to his former employment with the company they were robbing, speaking of Fred W. Albrecht, president of the concern, as having done the chief "dirt." "If I had him here now I'd put these handcuffs on him and treat him rough," Goldsmith quotes the burglar as remarking. This loquacious safe-cracker was called "Nicky" by his confederates, Goldsmith told the police.

Girl Injured When Seeking Fresh Air

NEW YORK.—Going to a window in a front room of her home to get a breath of fresh air, Elizabeth Flanagan, fifteen, a telephone operator, became dizzy and fell to the sidewalk. Her father, awakened by her screams, took her in a taxi cab to Bellevue Hospital where physicians said the girl had a fractured skull and stomach which caused him severe illness.

Dairy Sued Because of Worms In Milk

WHITE PLAINS.—Mrs. Sophie
Bliss has been appointed by the court as guardian of her one-year-old son to file suit against a milk company asking damages. It is alleged that the boy drank "milk obtained from the company which was unfit for use and contained worms and other foreign substances which caused him severe illness."

Gold Brick Valued at $18,000 Found

WATSEKA, Ill.—What is believed to be a real gold brick was discovered by workmen under the rotted floor of an old barn which has been standing here for half a century.
The brick is two inches thick,
and, should it prove to be gold,
would be worth considerably more than $18,000.

PARIS. Fluffy, ruffled night-robes of sheer linen and lace are being ousted from madame's

These "chemises de nuit" are

Monograms of tiny figures or

FIRST PHOTOS OF AMERICAN SHIPS NEAR SMYRNA

RED CROSS PLANS
CUT IN OVERHEADPeace-Time Standards of Activity Provided in Budget for Year

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Adhering to its postwar policy of consideration and co-ordination without affecting efficiency of accomplishment, the American Red Cross has adopted a budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, showing a reduction of $2,735,975 as compared with the expenditures of last year. The budget, $9,739,872.47 for 1922-23, is apportioned solely for the activities of the national organization, and it is exclusive of the large financial operations of the 3300 active Red Cross chapters which, it is estimated, added to the national budget would show a total not far under $20,000,000. Budget allotments for domestic operations aggregate $6,335,759.39, which is $488,015.22 less than expenditures for 1921-22. For foreign operations the total is $2,404,077.08, less by $2,247,959.90 than was spent the previous year.

Units Are Combined
The reduction in cost of domestic operations represents a saving in overhead expenses and decreased personnel through the combining of individual units. The foreign operations with the exception of the Junior American Red Cross, were practically terminated on last July 1 with the fulfillment of obligations and commitments abroad. Of this retrenchment Chairman John Barton Payne, in his annual report, says:

"One lesson learned from the war is that inflation is easier than retrenchment, and it required considerable time to withdraw from Europe without giving our friends there the impression that we were leaving them in the lurch. They had learned to expect much from American altruism; but all legitimate expectations have now been honorably met."

"The American Red Cross will preserve the confidence of the American people by a conscientious and prompt effort to keep down overhead expense without loss of efficiency in those activities where the Red Cross has unquestioned obligations and responsibilities."

Work for Ex-Service Men

Four years after the end of the world war the one "unquestioned obligation" which the Red Cross is meeting with a spirit of liberality both in funds and service is the work for disabled ex-service men and their dependents. Of the domestic budget, $3,030,422.99 is set apart by the national organization for soldier service—$366,000 more than was expended in 1921-22. The increase is imperative in order to keep pace with the demands, for on June 1 last 27,487 ex-service men were under treatment for government hospitals. Veteran and is regarded as a Red Cross work which must supplement the program of mass rehabilitation under federal laws and regulations through individual ministrations and interest.

Other outstanding domestic items in the 1922-23 budget are: For disaster relief, $750,000; for emergencies in chapter work, $500,000; for service and assistance to chapters and their branches, $1,293,000; for assistance to other organizations that train Red Cross nurses and workers, $200,000; for roll call assistance furnished to chapters, 190,000; for unforeseen contingencies, $100,000.

Less than $500,000 is set aside for management in the national organization. The ratio of management expense to the total expenditures last year was 5.2 per cent, and it is expected that the ratio this year will fall below 5 per cent.

In the budget for foreign operations the items for the child health program in Europe and medical and hospital supplies for Russia represent more than two-thirds of the entire foreign allotment. The child health program gets $411,314.10, but this is the balance of funds contributed to the American Red Cross specifically for this purpose. The $1,834,044.83 for Russian supplies is the balance of funds made

Gives Reasons for Registering Aliens

WASHINGTON.—Shortly after uncovering the nucleus to a worldwide plot for revolution, with headquarters in this country, and many "red" workers engaged therein, William J. Burns, chief of the national Bureau of Investigation, said:

"There is no objection, of course, to people coming to our shores from foreign lands if they follow peaceful pursuits, but we need more stringent laws to deal with radical agitators. Under the provisions of the bill fostered by Mr. Davis, registration would drive undesirable out of our country. An examination, fair and thorough, would deal a severe blow to radical agitators who try to sow seeds of dissension. Although the facilities at our command are being applied effectively at the present time, the plan embodied in the proposed law would greatly facilitate our work."

Many officials in the government who have hitherto looked with doubt upon the plan to make America's welcome to the foreigner less cordial, are coming to agree with the Department of Labor that there is nothing in the proposed registration of aliens which is either a hardship upon the registrars, or a great tax upon the government. It is pointed out that a nation-wide registration of the young men of the country was accomplished in one day for the purposes of raising a draft army, and without any great expense. The men who registered, it is noted, did not protest or regard it as other than a patriotic duty.

The law compelling registration of all aliens, and supervision over their activities, will not only, if passed, serve to keep "red" agitators out of the country, but will enable the government to keep absolute check upon those who remain here without being interested enough to become citizens, and those who make a whole-hearted effort to become real Americans.

French Woman, 35.
Mother of Fifteen

MOULINS, France.—"Come, it's time to get up, Pierre, Louis, Cecile, Georges, Lucie, Marcel, Gabriel, Jean, Henriette, Alice, Marie, Gustave, Georgette and Suzanne!" This is the first of the many morning duties of Mme. Celina Cheminot, who, at the age of 35, is the mother of fifteen kiddies.

Of these fifteen children Mme. Cheminot has lost but one. Four of the boys work on neighboring farms. The father and two other sons till the soil of their own seven-acre plot. The house itself has only two rooms, and yet, to quote Mme. Cheminot, "We are as snug as a bug—or rather bugs—in a rug!"

Sheep Can Live 280
Days on Pear Diet

JOHANNESBURG, S. A.—Experiments on the government agricultural farm at Grootfontein proved that a sheep can exist for 280 days solely on a diet of prickly pear and, if a little lucerne plant is added, for 500 days without a drop of water. That beats the camel.

available by the Red Cross for medical and hospital relief in the famine-stricken areas of that country, and this money is expended under the direction of the American Relief administration.

Of the remainder of the foreign operations budget, $928,718.15, there is appropriated for the liquidation and completion of general Red Cross relief activities in Europe $600,000, which includes the expense of relief work among thousands of Russian refugees quartered in Constantinople. For assistance to the League of Red Cross Societies in Europe $200,000 is set aside. The balance of the foreign funds provides $108,000 for Junior American Red Cross projects in Europe, $5718.15 for the Warsaw training school for nurses, which represents contributions to the Red Cross restricted to this purpose, and lesser amounts for continuing the work inaugurated by the American Red Cross in Posen, Prague and Bulgaria at training schools for nurses.

NEW BOOK STORE
OPENS SATURDAYJ. H. Shafe Has Practical and Artistic Quarters for His Business

J. H. Shafe couldn't have selected a more ideal time to open his book, stationery and art shop at 125-A South Brand boulevard in Roy Kent's new building, than the holiday time when everyone goes a-shopping.

And whether it's a Christmas gift or something distinctive for the home or office one can find a variety to choose from in Mr. Shafe's shop.

Mr. Shafe has been a resident of California for more than fifteen years and has had a book, stationery and art business in Richmond, California.

In considering Glendale as a fine business field, Mr. Shafe looked about for locations and thought himself most fortunate in securing store room in the new Kent building.

Visitors at the Shafe shop on Saturday for the formal opening will be impressed at once with the artistic and practical furnishing and arrangement of the store room. Mr. Shafe's years of experience have made him familiar with what a model book store room involves and in his new shop he has carried out these ideas.

Everything he designed himself and one will find the battleship grey and gold staining of the pine woodwork, the adequate table display space, the indirectly lighted shelves and the general atmosphere of the shop very artistic and pleasing.

Included in Mr. Shafe's fine stock are stationery of all grades and prices, picture frames, pottery, books, leather goods, brass goods and cards.

Many Christmas Cards
Of particular interest is the specially built rack for displaying Christmas cards. There are over 3000 cards on the rack and these are only part of the stock in the store.

Another corner of the display shelves that will interest visitors is that devoted to Spanish pottery, directly imported from Spain. The store woodwork was done by the Pacific Cabinet & Fixture company of 819 Milford street. "I am looking forward to conducting a business in Glendale," says Mr. Shafe, "and my greeting to Glendaleans is, buy in Glendale. At my shop they will find prices no higher than in Los Angeles stores."

Chinese Wall Torn Down to Sell Lots

PEKING—"The city may be yours, but the walls are mine," says the imperial family to the republican administrators. The controversy arose over the original scheme of a certain government official to raise a little revenue for the state and a great deal for himself. In short, he "sold" a section of the wall of the "Imperial City" to some real estate operators, who immediately began tearing it down. Since the base is at least 100 feet wide some choice city lots were obtained, not to speak of a quantity of bricks of a modern color and strength which modern Chinese can no longer produce.

Art lovers mourned. This imperial, or "Pink Wall," with its cover of yellow tile stamped with the dragon, is one of the beauties of Peking. When a quarter of a mile had already been torn down the imperial family stepped in and got an injunction. For several months nothing was done, and piles of bricks, which were carefully removed without breakage, are still on the site of the wall. No lots are yet for sale.

The royal owners of the wall now demand that it be put back. If they win their suit they will compel the "vandals" to reconstruct the entire broken section.

When people fall in love they call it a match, and so all town well-wishers stand on the sidelines to see it burn out.

Coal in the United States that is accessible and available for future use totals 2,500,000,000,000 tons, not including lignite.

UNIQUE FEATURE AT MUSIC CLUB

Program by Miss Jess Wins Praise at Meeting of Local Music Club

Introductory Groups
In her first two song groups she bows to her hearers in a beautiful flowered taffeta gown, one time owned and worn by Mrs. Lincoln when she was mistress of the White House.

These introductory groups given last night were songs of the naive Kentucky mountaineers and old plantation melodies and Miss Jess interpreted them all with the true naive and simple pathos of the mountain and plantation peoples.

It was during these groups that she sang as a special number, "My Old Kentucky Home," playing her own accompaniment upon a dulcimer, the three stringed instrument popular among the Kentucky mountaineers. Her story and singing of "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" was particularly enjoyable.

Most Dramatic Part
The most tensely dramatic part of Miss Jess' program was the next group sung in French, the first telling of Joseph and Mary journeying to Bethlehem, of their being turned away from the inns and finally seeking shelter in the stable, where the divine child was born. The second song was a soft lullaby sung by Mary to her babe in the manger.

Assisting Miss Jess with this group was a quartet composed of Glendale women, members of the music club. They were Mesdames Harry McMullin, C. A. Parker, Edith Rogers Arnold and A. M. Draper. After the manger lullaby they sang beautifully "Holy Night."

The merry and defiant song and dance of the Russian street singer was the first feature of Miss Jess' next group, songs of Russia. Appearing in a most becoming Russian peasant costume, the singer was first the aged violin player, then the happy, laughing street singer. This song was followed by a dramatic song describing the delirium of a dying child and the anxiety and grief of the watching mother. The last number of this group was a lighter song "The Goat."

Charming Picture
In appearing for her final songs, Melodies Populaires des Provinces de France, Miss Jess might well have stepped from a charming sketch on a rare piece of Dresden china into the rhythm of the statey minuet. She sang of the dancing master and his instructions of his charming pupil of the jolly fat priest and the children singing on May Day, of the wine maker's story of the grape and finally of the prisoner of Nante.

If any songs could be judged as more enjoyable than the rest they were "C'est le Mai" and "Le Vigneron," if the applause received is a criterion.

In the first song the story is told of the old fat priest as he slowly walks through the village with a band of children asking for May Day aims. Miss Jess' interpretation was perfect, first of the portly priest, with measured step, singing in his deep voice, which was echoed by the voices of the children.

Responds to Encore
"Le Vigneron" was so enjoyed by her hearers that Miss Jess responded to the applause by repeating the last part. "Le Vigneron" was the owner of a vineyard and a wine maker and with child-like merriment he tells how he plants the vine, which grows sturdily. Finally he picks the grapes, stamps out the juice with his feet and makes the wine, which brings great pleasure to the drinker.

Assisting Miss Jess most admirably was Carey Edward McAlister, pianist.

The Knabe piano used was secured through the courtesy of the Loomis-Shuck Music company.

The January program of the club will be given by Charles Wakefield Cadman and the Indian Princess.

Irish Patriot Known as 'The Bard' Dead

DUBLIN—John R. Sullivan, popularly known amongst his old Fenian friends throughout the world as "The Bard," is dead.

He was one of the most prominent figures in the Land War of the 80s, and in 1891 he was tried at Nenagh before Mr. Justice O'Brien (Peter the Packer) on charges of conspiracy. Two sentences of fourteen years penal servitude were passed. As he turned to leave the dock he cried out, "God Save Ireland." Thereupon the judge called him back and imposed another sentence of a further fourteen years. In later years he succeeded in getting restored the farm from which he was evicted.

U. S. Ships Urged to Quit Canal Trade

WASHINGTON.—The shipping board was urged today by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to discontinue the use of government-owned ships in service between Atlantic and Pacific ports. In a letter to Chairman Lasker, Julius H. Barnes, president of the chamber, declared the coast-to-coast shipping was provided with adequate private-owned tonnage and remonstrated against government craft entering into competition with private enterprise under present conditions.

HARDING GIVES VIEWS ON ISSUES

President In Message to Congress Tells About Domestic Problems

(Continued From Page 1) modification. Strict enforcement will reveal, he said, whether deliberate public opinion wants modification.

Agricultural Relief
He urgently recommended the need of greater credit facilities for the farmer, extended through the nation's great financial system.

He declared the farmers should have lower freight rates for moving their crops to market and that also new channels to markets must be opened up through improved waterways and highways.

The president recommended the new constitutional amendments, (1) a child labor amendment, and (2) an amendment prohibiting the issuance of tax free securities by the states and municipalities, which has resulted in the tying up of $18,000,000,000 on which the government is getting no taxes.

The president dealt only perfunctorily with foreign relations. He declared the nation was threatened with no wars, and he defended vigorously the part America has played in the international conferences abroad, saying America has been influential in those councils.

Foreign Relations.
America is willing, he said, to help other countries with their chaotic currency and commercial conditions but not at the expense of dragging America down to their level.

Contrary to expectations held in some quarters, the president made no recommendation for letting down the immigration bars to allow influx of "common labor."

"Before enlarging the immigration quotas," the President said, "it would be better to register and educate those aliens already in the United States."

In this connection the president declared the nation has not yet escaped the "red" menace that became prevalent during and after the war.

"Abusing the hospitality of our shores," he said, "are advocates of revolution, finding their devoted followers among these who take on the habiliments of an American without knowing the American soul. There is a recrudescence of hyphenated Americanism."

While the president dealt with a variety of subjects in this annual report on the "state of the nation," it was to the pressing problems of agricultural relief, transportation betterment and stricter enforcement of the prohibition law that he dealt with most extensively.

The president's utterances on women.

C. D. THOM TELLS OF REALTY MEET

Glendale Delegation Takes Part In State Session, at Santa Ana

The two most important considerations before the eighteenth annual convention of the California State Real Estate association now assembled at Santa Ana are graft curtailment and the multiple listing system, states President C. D. Thom of the Glendale Realty Board.

Mr. Thom, heading a delegation of local real estate men and women, motored to Santa Ana yesterday to attend the afternoon and night sessions of the convention, which is making its headquarters at the American Legion hall. They found assembled more than 1000 delegates, representing 102 California realty boards.

Makes Strong Plea
William H. Akin, chairman of the legislative committee, presided over the afternoon session, at which Edwin T. Keiser, state realty commissioner, made a strong plea for legislation to prevent fraudulent practices in the real estate profession. Mr. Keiser declared that the whole real estate structure was founded upon confidence and advocated co-operation with the realty boards of other states to curb this wholesale plunder. Some of the instances he named of eastern people victimized by the misuse of California's wonderful opportunities were clenching rivets to his arguments.

C. L. Seagraves, general colonization agent of the Santa Fe railroad, then told of what this system is doing and is prepared to do to further legitimate colonization movements, stating that the basis for such movements should be reasonable prices and liberal terms for land.

M. V. Hartranft, president of the California Home Extension association, next pointed out that every colonist adds $1000 to the value of the land.

The afternoon session closed with a discussion of multiple listing.

Glendale Boosted

At the evening session, states Mr. Thom, Glendale had the honor of having a representative in the "Home Town Contest." He was William A. Horn, prominent in local realty circles, who delivered a significant five minute talk on the desirability of Glendale as a home town. The winner of this contest, in which more than thirty speakers participated, will not be decided until this noon. The winner will be awarded a silver cup.

Charles B. Guthrie, also of Glendale, will speak at today's session.

Among those attending yesterday's session were Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Thom, E. P. Hayward, Mrs. Mabel L. Ticht, Dr. Jessie A. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Stewart, Mrs. Dieterich, Miss Winifred Traver, Roy D. King, O. F. Kroehle, W. P. MacMullin, Charles B. Guthrie, Peter Hanson, William McMullan, W. A. Horn, H. L. Miller, E. H. R. Grant, H. M. Crude Oil Capable of Operating Plane

LONDON—A new aeroplane engine, burning crude oil instead of gasoline, is expected by its designers to have far-reaching effects in the aeroplane industry. This new engine, which is developing a speed of 250 miles per hour, is at present undergoing tests.

The defect of crude oil engines hitherto has been that they run slowly, but it is claimed in this new invention high speed on a low ratio of weight has been attained.

Swiss Grape Cure Attracts Americans

PARIS—"The grape cure" is attracting many Americans to Vevey, in Switzerland, where, under proper medical supervision, it has proved itself to be of great value in cases of gout and certain forms of liver trouble. The patients rise early in the morning and cut the grapes themselves from the vines, and thus the "cure" includes not only the actual eating of three or four pounds of the fruit daily but a good deal of healthful walking and climbing through the vineyards.

THEATRES

The Glendale

Will Rogers, in "The Headless Horseman," continues at the Glendale Theatre. This great story recounts how Ichabod Crane, a Yankee school teacher from Connecticut, goes to Sleepy Hollow, New York, to take charge of a little community school house. Upon his arrival he meets the coquettish Katrina Van Tassel, the belle of the village.

Ichabod becomes infatuated with Katrina and out of this develops a charming, beautiful love story, interspersed with plenty of rich humor. As a joke the village innkeeper arranges the "Headless Horseman" episode but Ichabod takes the joke seriously and—The conclusion alone is worth the admission price.

The T. D. & L.

One of the strangest situations recorded in fiction or film is embodied in the Universal all-star production, "The Jilt," which comes to the T. D. & L. Theatre today.

A blind man, rejected suitor of a pretty girl, goes to Paris "to forget." He returns unable to forget but apparently harboring no ill-feeling against the girl or the "other man" who has taken his place in her affections. Then, suddenly, comes a dramatic development that leads to a crisis in the lives of the three.

To give away the conclusion would be to do picture lovers an injustice, for everyone who sees this film will get a tremendous thrill by the finale.

DAVID C. DONWELL TO BUILD MARKET

Rapid Growth of Meat
Business to Result In $100,000 Concern

The establishment of a large provision market between Broadway and Wilson avenue on Glendale avenue was announced this morning by David C. Donwell.

Mr. Donwell, who recently moved into his new home at 718 East Raleigh street, is the proprietor of the establishment at 123 and 125 North Glendale avenue, known as The Little Premium Market.

Two years ago he came to Glendale from Chicago, the center of the meat packing industry, and his familiarity with the choice cuts of meat soon attracted to his store a large number of discriminating customers. For some time he has felt the need of larger quarters in order to accommodate his trade and has now decided on a definite policy of expansion.

Shortly after the first of the year Mr. Donwell expects to incorporate for $100,000. He said this morning, however, that he would be the only person financially interested.

Plans Large Market
Plans are now being completed for a large market on the site of his present store. This property is owned by Mr. Donwell.

The new building will have a frontage of fifty feet between 123 and 125 North Glendale avenue, and will extend back about seventy-five feet. It will be one-story in height with a large basement.

The building material will be brick and the floor will be cement. Arrangements are being made by Dr. Donwell to lease the grocery, delicatessen, bakery and fruit departments. He will retain active charge of the meat department. He expects to do a wholesale business in certain lines.

Clemenceau Talks at Capital Today

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 8.—Georges Clemenceau, former premier of France, today wound up his four days stay in the capital with the only formal address of his visit. It will be delivered at 3 o'clock this afternoon in Continental Memorial hall, the place where the most important of the arms conference sessions were held.

"The tiger" is scheduled to leave Washington shortly after midnight for Philadelphia, where he will speak on Saturday under the auspices of the Academy of Music. He plans to spend Sunday at Cresson, Pa., as the guest of W. W. Atterbury, and then go to Chicago for a brief visit before returning to New York to sail for home.

New Department Is Aid to Housewives

"First Aid to Housewives" is a service which the delicatessen department of the Broadway Central Market, under the management of Mrs. Fred Tribolet, is inaugurating this week. This department proposes to solve the problem of the Glendale housewife when she is confronted by the necessity of serving a luncheon for unexpected guests, or when she wishes to plan an attractive menu for a home or social affair.

All kinds of home cooked food including fancy salads, roast meats, pies, cakes, pastry, etc., are always ready to be served on an instant's notice. Mrs. Tribolet announced this morning that the delicatessen department would make a specialty as assisting Glendale housewives to plan menus for special occasions. Provided the service proves popular, a catering service may be started later.

Service Association Becoming Popular

The Co-Operative Shoe and Service association, while one of Glendale's newest enterprises, is rapidly becoming a popular institution, according to Sales Manager Caberello, who is in charge of the campaign for members or shareholders in the association.

The purpose of the association is to reduce the cost of shoes, as well as the cost of repairing them to members. Special discounts on the purchase of new shoes and also on the repair bill are the advantages given to members of the association.

The new enterprise is strictly a home organization, backed by local professional and business men. The headquarters of the concern are at 312 East Broadway.

Four Executed by Free State Forces

DUBLIN, Dec. 8.—The following communique was issued by the Free State government this afternoon concerning the four executions of irregular leaders at Mountjoy prison:

"Roderick O'Connor, Liam Meliows, Joseph McKelvey and Richard Barrett were executed this morning in reprisal for the assassination of Deputy John (Sean) Hales yesterday. This is a warning to all other assassins who plot assassinations."

Adolph H. Fuelscher In New Building

Adolph H. Fuelscher, who has catered to Glendale's wants in the smithy line for the past five years, has moved his equipment from 135 North Maryland avenue to a new building erected for him at 124 North Geneva street which he has named the Auto Blacksmith & Spring Shop.

Mr. Fuelscher was forced to move from his former location because of the construction of the new freight house for the Pacific Electric.

David C. Donwell, proprietor of The Little Premium Market at 123 North Glendale avenue, is the owner of the new building which he has leased to Mr. Fuelscher for the next five years. The rental is almost $1000 a year.

The new building has a frontage of 45 feet and a depth of about 50 feet. Concrete building blocks were used in its construction. The floor is of cement and the four skylights have been installed in the roof to insure plenty of natural light.

"We are better equipped than we were before to handle all kinds of blacksmith work," remarked Mr. Fuelscher this morning.

"We have just installed a 28-ton press. We make a specialty of repairing automobile bumpers and springs."

An auto repair and welding shop is to be installed in the rear of the establishment. Mr. Fuelscher expects to have this in operation in the near future.

Birthday Party Is Given Rev. Norton

Rev. C. R. Norton, of 801 East Wilson avenue, one of Glendale's oldest residents, recently passed his seventy-seventh milestone. Among the many local friends who helped Rev. Norton in observing his birthday were the members of the J. O. C. class of the First Methodist Episcopal church Sunday school, who presented the popular Civil War veteran with a beautiful bouquet of red and white carnations.

Rev. Norton, who has lived in Glendale more than nineteen years, came to this city from Moravia, Iowa, where he was the pastor of the First Methodist church for six years. Upon arriving in Glendale he organized the First Methodist church of this city, of which he was pastor during the first four years of its existence. He directed the campaign which resulted in the erection of the original First M. E. church at the corner of Wilson avenue and Dayton court.

New Method Found to Pull Teeth Fast

HUNTER, Mo.—William Johnson, living near here, has found a new and original method for extracting teeth.

Johnson, riding along the country in his Ford car, sans windshield and sans top, was enjoying the cool, fresh zephyrs. A wire, unobserved by Johnson, struck him in the mouth. When he regained consciousness he was lying beside the road minus all his teeth except one.
